No. Viet Regiment Hit Again

. . . 384 KILLED

Ia Drang Valley, Viet Nam (AP)—Despite a heavy pounding from B52 bombers, a North Vietnamese Army regiment regrouped and hurled two fresh attacks at dawn Tuesday against troops of the U.S. 1st Cavalry Division in this bloodied valley between the Cambodian border and Plei Me.

The American forces turned back both assaults, suffering light casualties, a U.S. spokesman said.

He said a body count showed 384 enemy soldiers have been killed in the savage fighting that erupted Sunday and continued through most of Monday. The total communist death toll is believed to be much higher.

American casualties in the over-all battle were described as moderate, but two units took heavy losses Monday.

A dozen helicopters were required to ferry out the wounded.

The attack by the B52s from Guam came Monday after the U.S. troops, with support from U.S. Air Force fighter-bombers, kept the enemy bunched into an area two miles by one mile.

350 Tons Dumped

Then from 20,000 feet up, the B52s dumped more than 350 tons of 750-pound bombs into that postage stamp-sized target. The American troops pulled away from the target zone during the attack.

The aerial bombardment brought a lull in the fighting, but the full effects of the air strike were not immediately known.

U.S. Air Force officers aboard an observation plane which accompanied the B52s reported seeing no movement in the target area after the 20 planes had dropped their loads.

It was the first time in the Viet Nam war that the Strategic Air Command bombers had attacked an enemy on the move, in direct support of troops. Previous B52 attacks have been against dug-in Viet Cong positions.

After the initial action Sunday, a communist force of about 2,000 men attacked again at dawn Monday, hitting two cavalry battalions of around 1,000 men.

The North Vietnamese launched the battle of Ia Drang Valley, attacking 1st Cavalry troops pursuing communist forces that beseiged Plei Me, the U.S.-advised special forces camp that blocks Red supply lines from North Viet Nam through Laos and Cambodia.

1,200 Or More

Since the Reds opened their attack on Plei Me Oct. 19, American and Vietnamese forces may have killed more than 1,200 communist troops, senior U.S. commanders say. The 1st Cavalry accounted for 500 enemy dead, and air strikes and South Vietnamese troops for the rest.

161,000 From U.S.

Saigon, Viet Nam (AP) — A U.S. military spokesman reported Monday that American military personnel in South Viet Nam now number 161,100. He gave this breakdown: Army, 99,000; Navy, 8,000; Marines, 37,500; Air Force, 16,350, and Coast Guard, 250.

Pope Goes On Stand

. . . TELLS OF CHILDHOOD, SCHOOL

By BOB SCHREPF
Star Staff Writer

Softspoken Duane E. Pope took the witness stand Monday for the first time in the Federal District Court trial for his life.

Pope was the 40th witness called by attorneys Robert Crosby and Wallace Rudolph to testify in defense of charges he killed three persons and seriously injured a fourth in a Big Springs bank robbery June 4.

Although the move was not completely unexpected, it caught spectators off guard in view of the defense's repeated refusal to disclose whether Pope would be called to the stand to testify in his own behalf and to face possible cross-examination by the prosecution.

Tense And Quiet

The courtroom was tense and quiet as the defendant took his oath and climbed into the witness box, apparently unshaken. A rapid blinking of his eyes and an occasional glance at the ceiling were the only signs of nervousness.

In a calm, unhesitating voice Pope answered questions relating to his childhood and school days, but his replies were so soft that Crosby repeatedly told him to "speak up—you'll have to talk louder so the jury can hear you."

Most of Pope's testimony dealt with his recollections of grade school and high school experiences and references to his intense interest in machinery, which defense attorneys claim is a symptom of a schizoid personality.

Under questioning by Crosby, Pope also recalled a dream—"I had a lot of dreams but I remember this one the best"—he had when about eight years old, in which he was "shot in the stomach and chest . . .by a cowboy."

When asked if he remembered the dream well enough to know why he was shot, Pope replied, "Because I was laughing."

"What did you do after you were shot?" Crosby questioned. "Kept on laughing," answered Pope.

The tall former athlete told jurors he had no close boyhood friends during the years he went through the Roxbury, Kan., school system and that he did not feel he was popular enough to be elected to the student council his junior year of high school and as senior class president.

Quizzed about some low grades he received, Pope said, "I really didn't care. I probably should have studied more. I cared enough to get by and that was about it." He said a teacher had told him he was "mentally lazy."

Pope allowed that he liked English, "shop" and mathematics courses best because "they came easier," but admitted that sports was his first love in school. He also said he enjoyed acting in school plays and singing in the glee club, but disliked playing the trombone for five years and did so only because "my parents bought it for me."

DUANE E. POPE

Started at Age 10

"I probably enjoyed working with machinery best," said Pope, telling the jury that he "started tinkering" with tools and farm machines around his parents' home when he was about ten.

One of Pope's former athletic coaches, Dennis D. Brunner, now coach at Wichita (Kan.) North High School, testified he had "never seen another individual like Duane, from the standpoint of not showing emotion."

"He seemed to be on the outside looking in . . . he didn't show emotions one way or the other, either anger or elation," Brunner said.

Brunner's wife, Mrs. Faye Brunner, who also taught Pope, said that the usually shy and incommunicative youth had an unusual talent for acting.

Mrs. Brunner said she cast Pope in the role of an attorney in a mystery-comedy play when the defendant was a senior at Roxbury High.

Alive And Vibrant

"He was not himself, he became the man he was playing," she reported. "He was alive, vibrant."

Earlier testimony disclosed that Pope had visited Big Springs "on one or two" occasions nearly a year in advance of the holdup.

Work with a harvest combine crew took Pope to the area in the summer of 1964, and the crew, while working south of Big Springs, took the trips to town to look for other jobs, according to Pope's employer, Norman F. Adrian of Buhler, Kan.

Unanimous Court Junks Red Registration Rule

Washington (AP) — The Supreme Court held unconstitutional Monday a requirement for members of the Communist Party to register with the federal government.

Forced registration under the Subversive Activities Control Act of 1950 is inconsistent with the Fifth Amendment guarantee against possible self-incrimination, Justice William J. Brennan Jr. said for a unanimous court.

The decision is believed to cast serious doubt on the government's use of the law in the future to move against members of the party.

Gus Hall Likes It

National Communist leader Gus Hall welcomed the decision as opening the way for increased Communist activity. He said in New York, we're going to run Communists for public office. This is something we've always wanted to do and couldn't."

Justice Department officials noted, however, that the ruling is restricted to the registration of individual party members and said they will continue to prosecute the party for failure to register under the 1950 law. Trial of the party continued Monday in U.S. District Court here.

Hall said Monday's ruling is "a blow against the longest legal vendetta in American history."

WILLIAM ALBERTSON

The government has been trying to force registration of the party and its members since the 1950 law was passed.

Manifesto Due

As a result of the decision, Hall said the party will:

—Publish a basic political program or manifesto within two weeks.

—Call its first public national convention since 1950. An un-announced one was held in 1958.

—Act to enter candidates in next year's congressional elections.

Hall describes himself as "chief spokesman" for the party. He said the 1958 convention designated him "national chairman," but he has never used the title and it was never announced because of the 1950 law.

Critics of the 1950 subversives law contend it puts party members on the horns of an impossible—and unconstitutional—dilemma.

Either Way

If they fail to register they could be prosecuted, fined and sent to jail. If they register, they leave themselves open to prosecution under the Smith Act of 1940 which makes it a crime to belong to a group that advocates overthrow of the government.

The court followed this line of reasoning, putting aside all constitutional challenges to the registration requirements except the one based on the Fifth Amendment protection against possible self-incrimination.

This amendment, Brennan said in the court's written opinion, is designed to relieve citizens "of the necessity of making a choice between incriminating themsleves and risking serious punishment for refusing to do so."

Risks

By registering, Brennan wrote, a party member takes the obvious risks of incriminating himself. His reply to any of the questions in the registration form, the justice said, could involve him "in the admission of a crucial element of a crime . . .

"If the admission cannot be compelled in our oral testimony, we do not see how compulsion in writing makes a difference for constitutional purposes."

Thus, the Supreme Court reversed the U.S. Court of Appeals here and set aside orders by the Subversive Activities Control Board that William Albertson of New York City and Roscoe Quincy Proctor of Oakland, Calif., register with it.

Wheel Tax Hiked $2 A Year Per Car

. . . MRS. BOOSALIS CASTS ONLY 'NO' VOTE

By LUCILLE HUTCHINSON
Star Staff Writer

Wheel tax increases of $2 more a year per passenger car brought plenty of opposition at a public hearing but won 5-1 approval among City Council members Monday.

The increase, on a graduated scale for 18 separate categories, is slated for street improvements and arterial resurfacing in the city, according to Public Works Director Robert Obering.

Obering told the council that approval of the ordinance would bring an additional $135,000 per year for road work which would almost meet the needs of the ten year program calling for $1.5 million to be spent each year.

The present $404,000 wheel tax, $270,000 motor vehicle registration fees and $541,000 gas tax are all part of the financing for street improvements.

'Small Dent'

Councilwoman Mrs. Helen Boosalis voted against the wheel tax increase, labelling the move a "piece-meal approach—a small dent in a great big problem."

The $19 million deficit which, it is claimed, will face the city in 10 years if street revenues are not increased would not be noticeably affected by a wheel tax increase, Mrs. Boosalis said. She recommended deferring the proposal until a committee of citizens and highway users could suggest other means of financing the total needs.

Representatives of the Nebraska Petroleum Council, Lincoln New Car Dealers Association, the Nebraska Motor Carriers Association, and the Nebraska Petroleum Marketers and several Lincoln citizens appeared in opposition to the ordinance at the public hearing.

Counter-Proposal

Charles Chase, executive director of the Petroleum Council, presented a counter-proposal to get street funds through LB101 providing that cities can finance intersection improvement with bond issues.

New Car Dealers representative Keith Andresen said that vehicle owners are not the only ones who benefit from roads although they "bear the brunt of all road costs." He claimed that the total state gas tax collected exceeds that from property tax.

"There must be a better, fairer way" to tax all who benefit from public roads, Andresen said.

Complaining that the city should do something about vehicle owners who reside and work in the city but do not pay Lancaster County wheel tax, Mrs. Elizabeth Bott of 1023 No. 11th also opposed the increases. She said that these cars also damage the streets.

Other opponents urged the council to make every attempt to get state and federal money whenever possible, especially through LB101, in order to save what they term overburdened taxpayers.

Joe R. Seacrest, representing the Chamber of Commerce, appeared in support of the wheel tax increase, reading a "position in principle" favoring adequate city revenue to meet street needs.

Councilmen John Comstock, Carroll Thompson, D. E. Tyrrell, John Mason and Ervin Peterson voted for the increase. Councilman Lloyd Hinkley was not present.

Safety Check OKd 'Yarmouth Castle'

Miami, Fla. (AP) — The cruise ship Yarmouth Castle passed a Coast Guard safety check three weeks before she sailed to a fiery death in the Atlantic, an investigator said Monday.

Coast Guard Cap. V. G. Niebergall said the finding of a preliminary investigation disputed complaints from survivors that the Yarmouth Castle was poorly equipped to cope with the holocaust that swept the vessel Saturday.

Believed to have ridden the ship to the bottom were two crew members and 81 passengers, some thought to have burned to death in their cabins. One passenger died of his burns in a hospital.

Many surviving passengers said there was no warning as the fire raged through the ship, that the water sprinkler system failed to operate, that fire hoses lay unused on the deck, and that four of 14 lifeboats were lowered.

Fire Drill

"Three weeks before the Yarmouth Castle sailed, we held a fire drill aboard the ship in accordance with the international convention for safety of ships at sea," Niebergall said. "It was in compliance with the international regulations."

"International convention allows one-half hour to get lifeboats into the water," said Niebergall, head of the 7th Coast Guard District's Merchant Marine Safety Division. "This ship got its boats into the water in eight minutes."

He said he had testimony that the fire hoses were used until the water "petered out" but by that time, he said, "All the water in the world wouldn't have done any good.

In fact, Niebergall added, the weight of the water poured on the fire from the hoses may have hastened the sinking of the Yarmouth Castle.

"We didn't have authority to inspect the ship because she flew a Panamanian flag," Niebergall said, "but let's say we gave it a real good, close look."

However, Joseph Curran, of New York, president of the National Maritime Union, said the Coast Guard check covered only minimum standards set by international convention.

"We say this is a disgrace," Curran said. "We think the same safety regulations applying to U.S. flagships should apply to foreign flag ships soliciting business in the United States."

The Greek captain of the death ship, Byron Voutsinas, refused to tell newsmen his story of the deadly fire at sea.

MISHAP KILLS AUBURN YOUTH

Auburn (AP) — Dave Hillers, 20, of Auburn, was killed Monday night when crushed between two cars on Highway 67 a mile and a half south of Talmage.

Nemaha County Sheriff George Kelley said Hillers was riding with Eddie Dovel of Auburn when the Dovel car broke down. Hillers got out to work on the engine by the lights of another car in front of the Dovel car.

A third car, driven by Russell Hoover of Auburn, drove up behind the Dovel car and Hoover, blinded by the lights, drove into the rear of Dovel's car, shoving it forward and crushing Hillers between two vehicles.

December Conference Likely On Job Center

Lincoln Star Special

Washington — Nebraskans interested in the Lincoln Air Force Base Job Corps proposal reported here Monday night they hope for a full conference on the Lincoln proposal with Job Corps officials early in December.

The probability that the Nebraska group and the Job Corps will enter actual contract negotiations "seems high at this point," according to J. O. Grantham of Omaha who is slated to head the Job Corps in Lincoln if it is approved.

Principal problems now, Grantham said, are:

—To prove that the Nebraska group's "management capability" is "in the same league with "big nationally known firms which also are seeking Job Corps contracts.

—To make satisfactory arrangements for use of the Lincoln Air Force Base facilities.

If the Lincoln proposal is approved, it would be operated by a non-profit corpoation formed by Northern Natural Gas Co. of Omaha and the University of Nebraska. Grantham is presently Northern Natural's manager of long-range manpower planning.

Grantham said the Job Corps is expecting to open five new centers. The contract is "almost ready" on one, and negotiations on two others are "further along than ours," he said.

This leaves, he said, two centers "we'd still be in line for consideration on."

A slow-up on Job Corps decisions has also been caused by "differences with the bureau of the Budget," he said, but expressed optimism that these would be cleared up.

Unanimous Court Junks Red Registration Rule

Washington (AP) — The Supreme Court held unconstitutional Monday a requirement for members of the Communist Party to register with the federal government.

Forced registration under the Subversive Activities Control Act of 1950 is inconsistent with the Fifth Amendment guarantee against possible self-incrimination, Justice William J. Brennan Jr. said for a unanimous court.

The decision is believed to cast serious doubt on the government's use of the law in the future to move against members of the party.

Gus Hall Likes It

National Communist leader Gus Hall welcomed the decision as opening the way for increased Communist activity. He said in New York, we're going to run Communists for public office. This is something we've always wanted to do and couldn't."

Justice Department officials noted, however, that the ruling is restricted to the registration of individual party members and said they will continue to prosecute the party for failure to register under the 1950 law. Trial of the party continued Monday in U.S. District Court here.

Hall said Monday's ruling is "a blow against the longest legal vendetta in American history."

Hall describes himself as "chief spokesman" for the party. He said the 1958 convention designated him "national chairman," but he has never used the title and it was never announced because of the 1950 law.

Critics of the 1950 subversives law contend it puts party members on the horns of an impossible—and unconstitutional—dilemma.

If they fail to register they could be prosecuted, fined and sent to jail. If they register, they leave themselves open to prosecution under the Smith Act of 1940 which makes it a crime to belong to a group that advocates overthrow of the government.

Wheel Tax Hiked $2 A Year Per Car

By LUCILLE HUTCHINSON
Star Staff Writer

Wheel tax increases of $2 more a year per passenger car brought plenty of opposition at a public hearing but won 5-1 approval among City Council members Monday.

The increase, on a graduated scale for 18 separate categories, is slated for street improvements and arterial resurfacing in the city, according to Public Works Director Robert Obering.

Obering told the council that approval of the ordinance would bring an additional $135,000 per year for road work which would almost meet the needs of the ten year program calling for $1.5 million to be spent each year.

The present $404,000 wheel tax, $270,000 motor vehicle registration fees and $541,000 gas tax are all part of the financing for street improvements.

'Small Dent'

Councilwoman Mrs. Helen Boosalis voted against the wheel tax increase, labelling the move a "piece-meal approach—a small dent in a great big problem."

The $19 million deficit which, it is claimed, will face the city in 10 years if street revenues are not increased would not be noticeably affected by a wheel tax increase, Mrs. Boosalis said. She recommended deferring the proposal until a committee of citizens and highway users could suggest other means of financing the total needs.

Representatives of the Nebraska Petroleum Council, Lincoln New Car Dealers Association, the Nebraska Motor Carriers Association, and the Nebraska Petroleum Marketers and several Lincoln citizens appeared in opposition to the ordinance at the public hearing.

Counter-Proposal

Charles Chase, executive director of the Petroleum Council, presented a counter-proposal to get street funds through LB101 providing that cities can finance intersection improvement with bond issues.

New Car Dealers representative Keith Andresen said that vehicle owners are not the only ones who benefit from roads although they "bear the brunt of all road costs." He claimed that the total state gas tax collected exceeds that from property tax.

"There must be a better, fairer way" to tax all who benefit from public roads, Andresen said.

Complaining that the city should do something about vehicle owners who reside and work in the city but do not pay Lancaster County wheel tax, Mrs. Elizabeth Bott of 1023 No. 11th also opposed the increases. She said that these cars also damage the streets.

Other opponents urged the council to make every attempt to get state and federal money whenever possible, especially through LB101, in order to save what they term overburdened taxpayers.

Joe R. Seacrest, representing the Chamber of Commerce, appeared in support of the wheel tax increase, reading a "position in principle" favoring adequate city revenue to meet street needs.

Councilmen John Comstock, Carroll Thompson, D. E. Tyrrell, John Mason and Ervin Peterson voted for the increase. Councilman Lloyd Hinkley was not present.

Many surviving passengers said there was no warning as the fire raged through the ship, that the water sprinkler system failed to operate, that fire hoses lay unused on the deck, and that four of 14 lifeboats were lowered.

Fire Drill

"Three weeks before the Yarmouth Castle sailed, we held a fire drill aboard the ship in accordance with the international convention for safety of ships at sea," Niebergall said. "It was in compliance with the international regulations."

"International convention allows one-half hour to get lifeboats into the water," said Niebergall, head of the 7th Coast Guard District's Merchant Marine Safety Division. "This ship got its boats into the water in eight minutes."

He said he had testimony that the fire hoses were used until the water "petered out" but by that time, he said, "All the water in the world wouldn't have done any good.

In fact, Niebergall added, the weight of the water poured on the fire from the hoses may have hastened the sinking of the Yarmouth Castle.

"We didn't have authority to inspect the ship because she flew a Panamanian flag," Niebergall said, "but let's say we gave it a real good, close look."

However, Joseph Curran, of New York, president of the National Maritime Union, said the Coast Guard check covered only minimum standards set by international convention.

"We say this is a disgrace," Curran said. "We think the same safety regulations applying to U.S. flagships should apply to foreign flag ships soliciting business in the United States."

The Greek captain of the death ship, Byron Voutsinas, refused to tell newsmen his story of the deadly fire at sea.

December Conference Likely On Job Center

Lincoln Star Special

Washington — Nebraskans interested in the Lincoln Air Force Base Job Corps proposal reported here Monday night they hope for a full conference on the Lincoln proposal with Job Corps officials early in December.

The probability that the Nebraska group and the Job Corps will enter actual contract negotiations "seems high at this point," according to J. O. Grantham of Omaha who is slated to head the Job Corps in Lincoln if it is approved.

Principal problems now, Grantham said, are:

—To prove that the Nebraska group's "management capability" is "in the same league with "big nationally known firms which also are seeking Job Corps contracts.

—To make satisfactory arrangements for use of the Lincoln Air Force Base facilities.

If the Lincoln proposal is approved, it would be operated by a non-profit corpoation formed by Northern Natural Gas Co. of Omaha and the University of Nebraska. Grantham is presently Northern Natural's manager of long-range manpower planning.

Grantham said the Job Corps is expecting to open five new centers. The contract is "almost ready" on one, and negotiations on two others are "further along than ours," he said.

This leaves, he said, two centers "we'd still be in line for consideration on."

A slow-up on Job Corps decisions has also been caused by "differences with the bureau of the Budget," he said, but expressed optimism that these would be cleared up.

MISHAP KILLS AUBURN YOUTH

Auburn (AP) — Dave Hillers, 20, of Auburn, was killed Monday night when crushed between two cars on Highway 67 a mile and a half south of Talmage.

Nemaha County Sheriff George Kelley said Hillers was riding with Eddie Dovel of Auburn when the Dovel car broke down. Hillers got out to work on the engine by the lights of another car in front of the Dovel car.

A third car, driven by Russell Hoover of Auburn, drove up behind the Dovel car and Hoover, blinded by the lights, drove into the rear of Dovel's car, shoving it forward and crushing Hillers between two vehicles.

Part Of Vote Act Unlawful

. . . ON N.Y. PUERTO RICANS

Washington (UPI) — A special three-judge federal panel Monday declared unconstitutional a section of the 1965 voting rights act designed to give the ballot to New York's Spanish-speaking Puerto Ricans.

In a 2-1 decision, the panel ruled that Section 4E violates the constitutional right of the states to impose literacy tests on voting registrants.

The Justice Department will appeal the case directly to the Supreme Court. This is the only forum of appeal from the three-judge federal panel's ruling on voting rights cases

Kennedy, Javits

The provision was sponsored by Sens. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y., and Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y. It would have allowed any Puerto Rican who completed the sixth grade in the island's Spanish-language schools to register in New York without taking a literacy test.

This superseded a New York state law that waived literacy tests only for persons who had completed six grades in an English-language school.

The over-all voting rights bill, which also is being challenged in the courts, suspends literacy tests in those states and counties in the South where they have been used to discriminate against voters.

Rest Safe

Since the three judges acted on a provision that outlaws rather than suspends a state law, the ruling appeared unlikely to endanger the rest of the voting rights act.

Under the over-all act, the provisions on literacy and other tests would not apply if a state could prove to a District of Columbia court that they were not used for discriminatory purposes.

The Kennedy-Javits provision was aimed at the estimated 300,000 Puerto Ricans who live in New York City. It would affect, however, other non-English-speaking U.S. citizens with six grades of education in their native schools. There are 21 states that have English-language requirements

Doubts From Start

Doubts about the constitutionality of the provision were voiced in both houses of Congress from the outset. At one point, the Justice Department opposed it on that ground.

A suit challenging the Puerto Rican section was filed Aug. 6, only hours after President Johnson had signed the voting rights bill.

Judges Alexander Holtzoff and Joseph C. McGarraghy of the U.S. District Court for the District of Columbia said the provision would have to be enacted by a constitutional amendment—such as the 19th giving the right to vote to women — rather than by statute.

Dissenting was Judge Carl McGowan of the U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia. He said Congress was specifically given the right to pass laws affecting territories such as Puerto Rico. Among the rights, he said, was that of Puerto Ricans to vote on the island and to migrate to the mainland as full citizens.

Canada Plant's Broken Relay Called Trigger Of Blackout

Washington (AP)—The trigger that plunged the nation's northeast corner into darkness last Tuesday was a broken relay — an automatic switching device—in a Canadian power plant near Niagara Falls, it was announced Monday.

U.S. and Canadian officials reported their findings after a week of intensive inquiry into the chain-reaction blackout, but said they still don't know the origin of the surge of power that tripped out the relay. Nor do they yet have recommendations for prevention of another such massive power loss.

The government and industry experts kept digging to find out why so many of the interlinked U.S. systems collapsed like a string of falling dominoes and brought near-paralysis to much of the nation's most populous area as well as part of Canada.

The broken relay was pinpointed as the trigger of the blackout by Chairman Ross Strike of the Ontario Hydro-Electric Commission which operates a system on the Niagara River. He said it was in his system's Sir Adam Beck Plant No. 2 at Queenston, a village in southern Ontario four miles west of Niagara Falls.

Strike announced the findings in Toronto at almost the same time Chairman Joseph C. Swidler of the Federal Power Commission was issuing a report saying the failure "seems to have occurred" at the Beck plant. He said the FPC will work with Ontario officials to "confirm these preliminary conclusions."

The officials drew this outline of what occurred:

At a Toronto news conference following Strike's announcement, reporters asked about the possibility of sabotage. Dennis Dack, hydro commission public relations officer, replied:

"Any sabotage seems highly unlikely because we have narrowed it down to a piece of faulty equipment."

Canadian and American reports drew this outline of what occurred:

The Beck plant was producing 1.2 million kilowatts and taking 400,000 kilowatts from the United States under the grid system in which power systems are linked together to give each other a helping hand. The 1.6 million kilowatts was being fed northward to Canadian users over five lines.

The relay knocked out was one of the five lines feeding Beck's customers. The relay is a device to measure load on a line and set a limit beyond which a circuit-breaker will snap open cutting off the power.

The power surged over into other four circuits, knocked them out, and this brought a major inrush of power into upstate New York systems. The power surge turned south because it had no other place to go.

Strike said the very rapid increase in frequency tripped safety equipment but all of it didn't work.

Transmission lines and generating plants were tripped out in one system after another, reaching into New England and southern New York, throwing a mantle of darkness over New York City.

He said a second relay should have gone out at 800,000 volts, but it didn't, and "the power had no place to go but through the line to the United States."

U.S. Nixed Feelers For Viet Nam Talk In Burma

Washington (AP)—The State Department confirmed Monday that at least one approach for secret talks in Rangoon on ending hostilities was received from North Viet Nam a year ago.

It was rejected as lacking in sincereity, the department said.

Press Officer Robert J. McCloskey confirmed that U.N. Secretary-General U Thant relayed a proposal for a meeting of American and North Vietnamese emissaries in Burma in the early fall of 1964 but added:

"On the basis of the total evidence available to us we did not believe at any time that North Viet Nam was prepared for serious peace talks."

Double Denial

A report that Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara had opposed holding the meeting in Rangoon was denied by both McNamara and the State Department.

Later McCloskey said that in fact McNamara knew nothing about "these two reported approaches, expressed no opinion on them and did not participate in the decisions."

The report appeared in a Look magazine article by Eric Sevareid about the late U.N. Ambassador Adlai Stevenson.

Sevareid quoted Stevenson as saying that McNamara opposed the meeting because "the South Vietnamese government would have to be informed and that this would have a demoralizing effect on them; that the government was shaky enough as it was."

'100% Untrue'

In a statement McNamara declared it was totally false that in the fall and winter of 1964 he had opposed such talks.

"There is not one word of truth in the remarks made about me or the position attributed to me in the article," McNamara said. "My position has long been known.

"It is that we should search in every possible way for a peaceful settlement in Viet Nam and should be prepared for unconditional discussions with the governments concerned, in large groups or small ones, at any time and any place.

"That was my position in 1964. It is my position today and it will continue to be my position."

The State Department spokesman also reaffirmed that the United States is prepared for unconditional discussions.

Willing

McCloskey said there is "no unwillingness to talk to North Viet Nam."

"Did U Thant advise the United States that North Viet Nam was prepared for talks," McCloskey was asked.

"Yes," McCloskey replied. "All our indications were that there was no serious intent on the other side," he said.

"We saw nothing to indicate that Hanoi was prepared for peace talks and the secretary of state said he would recognize it when it came along. His antenna is sensitive."

In New York, U Thant declined to comment on the Look report on grounds he could not discuss matters taken up with member nations.

McCloskey affirmed that McNamara did not participate in making the decision to turn down the offer to meet in Burma with the North Vietnamese.

Drink-Barbiturate Mix Killed Miss Kilgallen

New York (AP)—A moderate mixture of alcohol and barbiturates was blamed Monday for the death of Dorothy Kilgallen, 52, Broadway columnist and television panelist.

Assistant medical examier James Luke called the circumstances of Miss Kilgallen's death "indecisive" and did not rule on whether it was accidental or suicide.

Miss Kilgallen was found dead in bed in her East Side apartment a week ago. She first was believed to have suffered a heart attack but that was ruled out in a preliminary autopsy.

Dr. Luke reported after further tests that Miss Kilgallen died of "acute ethanol (alcohol) and barbiturate intoxication."

He said the quantities of alcohol and barbiturates in the bloodstream were not excessive, but that the combination caused a fatal "depression on the central nervous system."

Shortly before her death, Miss Kilgallen had appeared as a regular panelist on the CBS Sunday night show, "What's My Line." Members of the panel paid individual tribute to her at the close of Sunday night's show, where her place was taken by actress Kitty Carlisle.

Wilson Gets Power To Rule By Decree In Rhodesian Matters

London (AP)—Both houses of Parliament approved early Tuesday the British government's emergency bill for sweeping powers to put down the rebellious white government in Rhodesia.

The bill gives Prime Minister Harold Wilson power to rule by decree in Rhodesian issues.

It is intended firmly to establish Britain's sovereignty in the colony and to authorize sanctions or whatever other action the British government may feel necessary.

Prime Minister Ian Smith's government declared independence last Thursday after a long crisis over British insistence on eventual rule for Rhodesia's Africans.

Nazi Taken Away

During Monday night's House of Commons debate, a man identified as Colin Jordan, leader of Brtain's small Nazi Party, was dragged off after he staged a white supremacy demonstration in the gallery.

Wilson's decrees will take effect as soon as issued, but he must give Parliament a chance to disapprove them within 28 days.

Conservative critics in Commons complained that the bill is in effect a blank check and gives Parliament far too little control.

But when, after 8 hours of debate before a packed public gallery, only one conservative — Edward Taylor, member for Cathcart, Glasgow—was prepared to press opposition, the bill passed the Commons without a formal vote.

The bill became law at 1:53 a.m., the moment it was given formal royal assent.

Only Legal One

Atty. Gen. Elwyn Jones told Commons that Queen Elizabeth II, acting through her governor, Sir Humphrey Gibbs, heads the only legal government in Rhodesia.

Smith thought otherwise. He told reporters Rhodesia "no longer has a governor," but he failed in two confrontrations with Gibbs Monday to evict him from Government House in Salisbury

In the House of Lords, the bill's most prominent critics, Lord Coleraine and the Marquis of Salisbury, leveled their attack less on Wilson than on their Conservative colleagues of former administrations.

Both have long been opponents of ex-Premier Harold Macmillan whose celebrated "wind of change" speech signaled the transfer of power to Africans in all Britain's former African colonies except Rhodesia.

Scope

Coleraine and Salisbury joined in pressing the government to bring its boycott of Rhodesian tobacco and sugar within the scope of the bill.

The boycott, which took effect Monday, "is a blow at the lifeblood of the Rhodesian economy. It was imposed under emergency regulations dating from World War II and orginally intended to deal with Hitler.

They argued that to use anti-Hitler legislation would be taken as an insult by white Rhodesians, and that the boycott should be brought under parliamentary control.

But they agreed not to press for a vote when government floor leaders said the issue could be debated later.

Eisenhower Progress Impressive

Ft. Gordon, Ga. (AP)—Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower's physicians reported Monday they are "immensely impressed" witheir heart patient's progress.

The five-star general suffered the first of two chest pain attacks early last Tuesday morning at his vacation cottage on the grounds of the Augusta National Golf Club.

Although the general, now 75, suffered a severe heart attack in 1955, initial reports were quite optimistic and it was announced Eisenhower would be transferred last Friday from the Ft Gordon hospital to Walter Reed Army Hospital in Washington to complete his recuperation.

Then he had another bout of chest pain Wednesday afternoon and the reports turned very cautious.

Air Force Academy's Honor Code Is Changed

Washington (AP)—The Air Force announced Monday it has changed the honor code at the Air Force Academy and adopted most recommendations of a committee that studied the academy's practices after widespread cheating was disclosed there.

Measures also have been taken which apparently would lead to lessening of emphasis on football.

The special committee headed by Gen. Thomas D. White (ret.), former Air Force chief of staff, turned in a 94-page report last May after 109 cadets resigned in the cheating incident.

Five Men

The five-man committee was set up to determine the basic causes of honor code violations and propose remedial action.

The Air Force accepted most of the committee's 27 recommendations with few modifications.

The advisory panel recommended improvements in administration of the honor code, including indoctrination of the cadets on its meaning.

"Increased emphasis is placed on the honor code as part of a broader ethical structure," the Air Force said.

"Far greater emphasis is being placed on a better understanding of the honor code by prospective candidates, all staff members, cadets and liaison officers"

To Be Told

The Air Force listed a number of changes in carrying out the code, among them a provision that an accused cadet or witness shall be told that his statements are voluntary but may be used against him in any board hearing or court-martial.

The advisory committee found that cheating was eight times more prevalent among football players than other cadets who were not athletes.

The committee demanded that "misplaced notions of loyalty" be eliminated from the athletic program

In response to this, the Air Force said football players and other athletes are now being evenly distributed among the cadet squadrons and that athletes will meet only during their sport seasons and practice periods.

2 More Gangland Victims Found Shot In Mickey Mouse

Boston (AP)—Two men, apparently victims of killings, were found shot to death Monday night in a dimly lighted cafe in nearby Revere Beach.

Their shootings, combined with the killing of a small-gangland time hoodlum in Boston early in the day, brought the total of gang slayings in one day to three.

The victims in the Revere Beach slayings were identified as Robert Distasio, 35, of Medford, and John O'Neill, about 35, of Revere Beach Both had been shot in the head

If confirmed as gangland killings, they would be the 27th and 28th such deaths in a string that began 20 months ago.

A police official said of the latest killings, "it has all the earmarks of a gangland killing."

The official, who declined to be quoted directly, said at least two guns were used in the killing in the Mickey Mouse Cafe on Revere Beach Boulevard. Bullets of two different calibers were found.

Police Chief Colin A. W. Gillis said Distasio was shot twice in the back of the head and O'Neill three times.

No. 26 Earlier

The body of No. 26, a small-time hoodlum and ex-convict named Robert A. Palladino, 34, of Winchester, was found earlier in the day behind a ramp of the John F Fitzgerald Expressway near North Station

He too had been shot in the back of the head.

Most of the victims in the series of slayings were known to the police as hoodlums, and had served sentences at state prison.

Atty. Gen. Elwyn Jones told Commons that Queen Elizabeth II, acting through her governor, Sir Humphrey Gibbs, heads the only legal government in Rhodesia.

Smith thought otherwise. He told reporters Rhodesia "no longer has a governor," but he failed in two confrontrations with Gibbs Monday to evict him from Government House in Salisbury.

In the House of Lords, the bill's most prominent critics, Lord Coleraine and the Marquis of Salisbury, leveled their attack less on Wilson than on their Conservative colleagues of former administrations.

Both have long been opponents of ex-Premier Harold Macmillan whose celebrated "wind of change" speech signaled the transfer of power to Africans in all Britain's former African colonies except Rhodesia.

Scope

Coleraine and Salisbury joined in pressing the government to bring its boycott of Rhodesian tobacco and sugar within the scope of the bill.

The boycott, which took effect Monday, is a blow at the lifeblood of the Rhodesian economy. It was imposed under emergency regulations dating from World War II and orginally intended to deal with Hitler.

They argued that to use anti-Hitler legislation would be taken as an insult by white Rhodesians, and that the boycott should be brought under parliamentary control.

But they agreed not to press for a vote when government floor leaders said the issue could be debated later.

Eisenhower Progress Impressive

Ft. Gordon, Ga. (AP)—Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower's physicians reported Monday they are "immensely impressed" witheir heart patient's progress.

The five-star general suffered the first of two chest pain attacks early last Tuesday morning at his vacation cottage on the grounds of the Augusta National Golf Club.

Although the general, now 75, suffered a severe heart attack in 1955, initial reports were quite optimistic and it was announced Eisenhower would be transferred last Friday from the Ft. Gordon hospital to Walter Reed Army Hospital in Washington to complete his recuperation.

Then he had another bout of chest pain Wednesday afternoon and the reports turned very cautious.

Air Force Academy's Honor Code Is Changed

Washington (AP)—The Air Force announced Monday it has changed the honor code at the Air Force Academy and adopted most recommendations of a committee that studied the academy's practices after widespread cheating was disclosed there.

Measures also have been taken which apparently would lead to lessening of emphasis on football.

The special committee headed by Gen. Thomas D. White (ret.), former Air Force chief of staff, turned in a 94-page report last May after 109 cadets resigned in the cheating incident.

Five Men

The five-man committee was set up to determine the basic causes of honor code violations and propose remedial action.

The Air Force accepted most of the committee's 27 recommendations with few modifications.

The advisory panel recommended improvements in administration of the honor code, including indoctrination of the cadets on its meaning.

"Increased emphasis is placed on the honor code as part of a broader ethical structure," the Air Force said.

"Far greater emphasis is being placed on a better understanding of the honor code by prospective candidates, all staff members, cadets and liaison officers."

To Be Told

The Air Force listed a number of changes in carrying out the code, among them a provision that an accused cadet or witness shall be told that his statements are voluntary but may be used against him in any board hearing or court-martial.

The advisory committee found that cheating was eight times more prevalent among football players than other cadets who were not athletes.

The committee demanded that "misplaced notions of loyalty" be eliminated from the athletic program.

In response to this, the Air Force said football players and other athletes are now being evenly distributed among the cadet squadrons and that athletes will meet only during their sport seasons and practice periods.

2 More Gangland Victims Found Shot In Mickey Mouse

Boston (AP)—Two men, apparently victims of killings, were found shot to death Monday night in a dimly lighted cafe in nearby Revere Beach.

Their shootings, combined with the killing of a small-gangland time hoodlum in Boston early in the day, brought the total of gang slayings in one day to three.

The victims in the Revere Beach slayings were identified as Robert Distasio, 35, of Medford, and John O'Neill, about 35, of Revere Beach. Both had been shot in the head.

If confirmed as gangland killings, they would be the 27th and 28th such deaths in a string that began 20 months ago.

A police official said of the latest killings, "it has all the earmarks of a gangland killing."

The official, who declined to be quoted directly, said at least two guns were used in the killing in the Mickey Mouse Cafe on Revere Beach Boulevard. Bullets of two different calibers were found.

Police Chief Colin A. W. Gillis said Distasio was shot twice in the back of the head and O'Neill three times.

No. 26 Earlier

The body of No. 26, a small-time hoodlum and ex-convict named Robert A. Palladino, 34, of Winchester, was found earlier in the day behind a ramp of the John F. Fitzgerald Expressway near North Station.

He too had been shot in the back of the head.

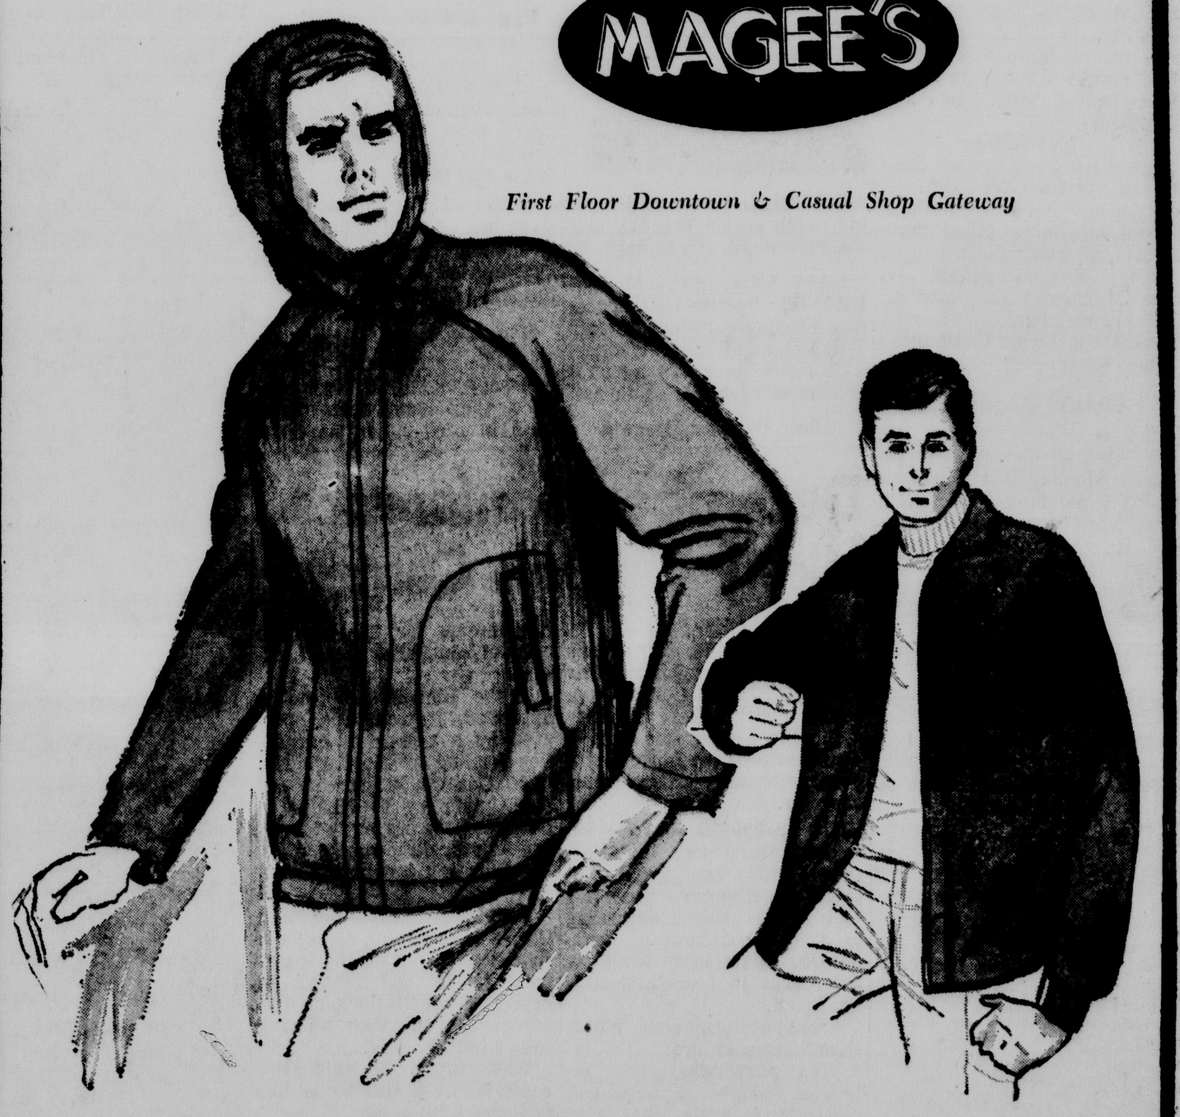

Most of the victims in the series of slayings were known to the police as hoodlums, and had served sentences at state prison.

Chicago Transient Faces Three-Count Complaint In Omaha Bank Holdup

Omaha (AP)—Gregory Albert White, 52, a transient from Chicago, apeared before Federal Judge Richard E. Robinson Monday night on a three-count federal complaint filed in connection with the $18,000 robbery of the First National Bank in downtown Omaha shortly before noon Monday.

Judge Robinson set bond at $25,000 and continued the case until 9 a.m. Tuesday.

White said he "wanted to get it over with quickly."

The three counts could carry a maximum sentence of $10,000 fine or 25 years in prison upon conviction.

Authorities said that White was riding in a taxi when the driver Harry F. Stanley, 64, became suspicious because the man appeared very nervous. Stanley hailed a police cruiser at 26th and "H" Streets in South Omaha. He said White jumped out of the taxi and ran.

Cruiser Patrolmen Larry Chlafant and Ken Tyler captured him after a short chase.

Officers said White had about $5,000 in his possession at the time of his arrest but the whereabouts of the balance of the money was not determined. Officers also said he had in his possession a pistol which police described as a toy gun or starter's pistol.

A roomer at the hotel where White had been living, Robert Crook, said that White came into the room Monday afternoon and "dumped a whole sack of money on the floor."

A few minutes later White left the room and hailed the cab

White was picked up several hours after a small, elderly holdup man had staged Omaha's second bank robbery within two weeks.

Mrs. Linda Bober, 20, the First National Bank teller confronted by the holdup man at 11:28 a.m., said she "thought he was kidding," when he laid what appeared to be a black automatic pistol on the counter.

"No, I'm not kidding," the man replied, "don't turn around. Don't look around, because I don't want to kill anyone." Mrs. Bober said she repeated several times during the holdup "you're kidding; you're kidding."

Mrs. Bober said she filled a sack from the cash drawer and the gunman turned away, walked into the west lobby directly across from her counter, then turned back and went down the escalator leading to Farnam Street.

Mrs. Bober said she pressed the alarm buttor under her counter as the man started down the escalator.

Bank officials said the holdup man must have almost met police as they poured into the bank. Two more alarms went off in the loan department of the bank, one floor down, about 15 minutes later, but they were proved false alarms.

On Nov. 1 a bandit got $3,600 at the U.S National Bank just across the street, and on Sept. 29 a bandit escaped with more than $8,000 from the Farmers State Bank of Elkhorn, which is just west of Omaha.

The First National has been robbed twice previously. Both times in the same manner as Monday's robbery. In 1960 the bank lost $1,400 and in 1948 the loss was $1,000.

There have been three other major bank robberies in the Omaha area in recent year.

On June 19, 1964, a bandit took $1,700 from a teller at the Douglas County Bank and was fatally shot in a gunfight with officers. A deputy sheriff was seriously wounded.

In September, 1963, a bandit took $10,000 from a teller at the South Omaha Bank and Aug. 9, 1961, three bandits took $71,000 from the First Westside Bank at the Crossroads shopping center.

Wreckage Of Plane Carrying Curtis

Senator Carl T. Curtis suffered a chip fracture of a bone in the right shoulder when the light aircraft he was traveling in crashed and burned on takeoff at the Mullen airport Sunday. The pilot, Bob Garey of Hastings, and Burkett Van Kirk of Lincoln, minority counsel of the Senate Rules Committee, escaped injury. Curtis' office in Minden reported he canceled a private meeting with a group of students in Lincoln Monday night and two appearances in Omaha Tuesday. He was quoted as saying he was most grateful for the manner in which Garey handled the emergency in Mullen.

Suit Will Test Validity Of Power Merger Bill

North Platte (AP)—The Platte Valley Public Power and Irrigation District filed a petition in Lincoln County District Court Monday asking for a declaratory judgment holding that LB764, the power merger bill passed by the last legislature, be declared unconstitutional

Similar actions have been filed previously in an attempt to upset the plan which would merge the Platte, Loup and Consumers Districts into a single power district.

The petition filed by Platte Monday lists 60 defendants and Homer Loutzenheiser, Platte general manager, said in a statement the district hopes that "the naming of interested public power agencies and other parties who are either directly or indirectly affected by LB764 will result in the legal issues presented by the bill being thoroughly tried and resolved in a minimum of time."

He said such a lawsuit, testing the validity of the power merger bill, had been urged by some members of the legislature "as well as other parties named in the petition."

The measure passed by the last session of the unicameral was designed to establish a state grid to deal with generation and transmission at the wholesale level and get the agencies out of the retail field by 1973. However the measure does not include an unequivocal ban against retail operations

One of the principal challenges to the measure is a suit filed by Clarence Wittler of Humphrey in Platte County District Court at Columbus challenging the legality of the act.

Coleman Case Goes To Jury Following Final Arguments

Omaha (AP)—With issue of electronic bugging prime to the last, the John B Coleman case went to a District Court jury of six men and six women Monday evening.

The jury retired for the night at 10:15 p.m.

Judge John Murphy advised the jury it must "neither accept nor reject testimony just because it was recorded."

Each of the three defense attorneys attacked the 11 recorded tapes which have been admitted in evidence. One lawyer, James Green, waved one of the tape spools and then slammed it down so hard it clattered to the floor.

John Coleman, 30-year-old Chicago investor, and others testified the tapes were recorded from conversations picked up by tiny hidden microphones in Coleman's hotel room Coleman said he was attempting to get evidence of shakedown attempts.

On the basis of Coleman's story, two former city councilmen, Stephen T. Novak and Ernest A. Adams, are charged with soliciting bribes. Real estate man Ronald Abboud is charged with aiding and abetting them.

The state charged Adams and Novak, who were on the council at the time of the incidents described, agreed to sell their votes to assure passage of a zoning change sought by Coleman so he could build a $1 million townhouse project

Prosecuting attorneys described the tapes as corroborating the testimony of Coleman and others. Deputy County Attorney Arthur O'Leary argued that if the tapes were illegal, or had invaded privacy, they would not have been admitted as evidence.

The testimony brought out that former FBI man Joseph Thornton has been in charge of the bugging operation.

Ephraim Marks, representing Abboud, declared that Thornton had testified that in his 25 years in the FBI he had only been involved in five or six instances of bugging and then it required the personal permission of the U.S. attorney general.

Marks also attacked the role of the Omaha World-Herald. It was to the newspaper that Coleman had gone for assistance. Testimony showed that Thornton had been hired by the World-Herald which printed the story of its investigation prior to indictments of the three men on trial.

Marks called the case a "pre-packaged, frozen meal ready to be warmed over by the county attorney."

He said "I wouldn't question the right of any newspaper to expose civic corruption" but added: "that's a far cry from what was done in this case."

Adams, a former state legislator and county treasurer, is accused of taking a $5,000 payment and Novak of agreeing to accept $10,000. Abboud was accused of being a go-between who paid off the others and then was reimbursed by Coleman.

70 Per Cent Of Corn Crop Is Harvested

About 70% of Nebraska's 1965 corn crop has been harvested, government crop observers said Monday

The State-Federal Division of Agricultural Statistics said most of the corn harvest has been finished in east central and southeast counties, with mop up operations under way in the northeast.

Most of the sorghum and soybeans have been harvested.

The division said winter wheat made good growth, particularly in areas receiving rain.

Beet Harvest Ending

The sugar beet harvest is about completed with only a few fields remaining to be lifted.

Range and pastures continue to furnish good food for livestock. However, grass is becoming dry and brittle in some of the Sandhill counties.

Weather conditions have been favorable for livestock to maintain a good condition. Movement of livestock has been about normal with farm feed lots starting to fill.

Parole Violator Kills Self As Officers Stand By Helplessly

Beatrice (AP)—Donald Biauce, 31, a parole violator from Santa Fe, N. Mex, barricaded himself in the bathroom of his home Monday and while a minister and policemen stood helplessly outside, killed himself with a .410 gauge shotgun.

Sheriff Fred Steinkamp Jr. said Biauce had been sentenced to 20 years in the New Mexico penitentiary for armed robbery in September, 1957, and was paroled in February, 1964. In April 1964, a warrant charging parole violation was issued.

Called Minister

His intentions to take his own life became known authorities said, when he called a minister and told him of his plan. The minister called police and then went to the home where Biauce lived with another man, but were not able to enter the barricaded bathroom to prevent the act.

Authorities said Biauce left three separate suicide notes with the manager of a filling station where he worked. One threatened to kill himself and a woman, a second threatend to kill himself and another man and the third said only that he would take his own life.

Authorities said he had lived in Beatrice only a few months.

The confrontation between President Johnson and the aluminum industry may have some economic repercussions that few have envisioned. Not at all difficult to see is the immediate effect of that confrontation. With the President winning, the aluminum companies rescinded the price increases they announced and that should be a stabilizing force upon the economy.

Contrary to some reports, not all business and industry are aghast at the administration's efforts to control prices. Many small businesses that use aluminum are reported to be pleased that the increase proposed will not now come to pass. They have absorbed an increase in each of the past five years and some feel they would be unable to pass a hike along to their own customers. Nor do all observers and other interested parties condemn some of the political implications of the situation. Not all of them see the Johnson position as unacceptable in comparison with a free market price determination.

Some Approval Evident

Many note that the federal government has a proper concern over the state of the national economy, a fact which vast numbers of people grant when things are bad but which they seem to dislike when things are good. If we had a depression, the role of the government in curing it would hardly be questioned. But when the economy is riding high, some are inclined to want a government-hands-off policy.

Also, the talk of the free market is often as theoretical as it is practical. Just how responsive to the free market are such giants as the aluminum industry, steel, auto manufacturers, the space industry and others? How much are they responsible to the market and how much is the market responsive to them?

Those are questions that will be pondered more and more as science further refines and narrows our industrial base, placing major economic decisions in fewer and fewer hands. Congress will no doubt examine some of these things when it looks at the nation's stockpile of strategic materials after the first of the year. But Congress also will look at the nature of the stockpile itself. That stockpile now is aimed more at conditions as they might exist after a full conventional war. Stockpiling has not concerned itself so much with the situation as it might exist following a nuclear war. Congress may well look at this as well as the size of the stockpile itself. In regard to the latter, some consideration will undoubtedly be given to use of the stockpile as a hedge against undesirable price adjustment in the private sector of the economy.

An effort will probably be made to cut the stockpile to such an extent that it leaves no room for dumping goods on the market when the price situation seems to the White House to warrant such dumping. It is unlikely, however, that Congress will prohibit such action on the part of the administration. The content of the stockpile could drastically change, however, if a nuclear war were made a primary consideration. Now, the stockpile is composed mainly of strategic raw materials that go into the production of weapons of war. Missing are finished items such as machines that could get the country moving again after a nuclear attack.

Should Congress switch the emphasis toward such an eventuality as nuclear war, it could be a field day for contractors with the government. Out would go the call from government for such things as tractors, bulldozers, machine tools, cranes and a host of other heavy equipment.

And this kind of stockpile would differ in another respect from the raw materials stockpile we have concentrated on in the past. It would be a stockpile that would always be going out of date, always becoming obsolete. An aluminum stockpile can be held indefinitely but tools and machinery are constantly changing. Thus, we would have a stockpile turnover that would interest both sellers and buyers.

In the field of military procurement, we have often been astounded at the things our government has done. We have heard of such things as huge tire purchases of a size that fit no military vehicles and of purchase, for instance, of something like one million corkscrews. One would hope that if the stockpile objectives are altered to include finished products, the buying is not done by the military. We could end up with 2 million typewriter ribbons for machines no longer made, 500,000 fan blades when everything is air-conditioned, millions of nuts with no bolts and a vast assortment of other largely useless things.

Unbelievable Buys

Part of the aluminum business today stems, not from any price increase, but from a huge surplus stock. The government has nearly 1.5 million more tons of aluminum in stock than it needs and doubtless a substantial excess of many other materials. Thus, the stockpile business holds promise of some interesting times ahead regardless of the matter of who controls prices and how.

Fight To Protect Wilderness Goes On

There's something mysterious about the congressional hearings being held this week (Nov. 16) in San Bernardino over the San Gorgonio wilderness area in Southern California.

At the last session of Congress, the House of Representatives voted two to one against permitting even 10 per cent of the San Gorgonio area to be used by ski jumpers and hotel operators for recreation.

Yet this week, one month after Congress adjourned, a subcommittee of the House Interior and Insular Affairs Committee is opening hearings on a subject already decided by the House. The subcommittee is headed by Walter Baring, the right-wing Nevada Democrat, and includes Harold Johnson, liberal California Democrat, and Craig Hosmer, the right-wing California Republican. Ken Dyal, a liberal Democrat who represents the San Bernardino - San Gorgonio district, introduced the bill. Though not a committee member, he will attend.

San Gorgonio is the only wilderness - type mountain area remaining in Southern California not developed for recreation, and a battle has been on between the ski-lift operators and the conservationists.

Such conservationists as Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas have backed up the U.S. Forest Service in urging that this area, close to Los Angeles, be preserved.

"An appreciation of America in its wilderness state is important training for young people," says Justice Douglas.

The vote at the last session of Congress to overrule the Forest Service was a bipartisan one. Pennsylvania Republican John Saylor led the forces for conservation. On the other side, voting for the ski lifts, were Democratic liberals Dyal and Lionel Van Deerlin of California.

Now that Congress has decided the issue, the ski lift-motel forces have been talking to their friends in Congress about renewing the attack. Hence this week's hearings.

It was Secretary of the Army Stanley Resor, not ex-Secretary of the Army Stephen Ailes, who made the trip to Charleston to pay tribute to Rep. Mendel Rivers of South Carolina when Rivers' bust was unveiled . . . Japan has refused to contribute troops to help the United Nations keep the peace between India and Pakistan. It was hoped that Japan, an Asiatic nation and a great believer in peace, would hlep to prevent a war which could engulf Asia. Perhaps because Japanese businessmen sell to both India and Pakistan, the Japanese government refused to cooperate.

LA VERNA HASSLER

Patchwork Prairie Country

The wind blew chill from the north today. I seemed to hear a warning as it shrieked through the trees, scattering the last of the leaves. The dull leaden sky had an ominous cast, too . . . one that hinted of snow. I did not linger long outside. The cozy warmth of the house lured me quickly.

The Farmer put an extra sweater beneath his jacket this morning and I reached deep into the closet for a wool suit. The weatherman's report saying it was to be colder sent premature shivers running up and down my spine. Actually I wondered why I allowed myself to dread such a day, for should a day with temperatures in the low forties appear in mid-January, I would marvel at the delightful warm day.

Just let a day in mid-forties appear in early November, and everyone is in agreement—it's cold and raw and miserable, and how will we ever get through the winter?

A picker-sheller moved easily through the corn field last night as I returned home, stirring many thoughts from my own childhood when picker-shellers were as remote as the moon . . .

One dark morning I heard a stirring in the kitchen downstairs. This was soon followed by the tempting smell of bacon frying and coffee perking. I could not resist the temptation any longer. I crawled from my bed and made my way across the dark room. The floor was cold for bare feet. When I felt the stairway bannister, I knew I was making progress through the dark.

Slowly I groped my way down the stairs. At the foot of the stairs, I saw a stream of light beneath the kitchen door. I hurried across the dining-room and opened the door. The warmth from the kitchen flooded over me as I stood there in my long flannel nightgown, blinking at the light.

The hired man was there, along with Dad and Mom. The soft glow of the kerosene lamp upon the table added coziness to the kitchen. Hot cakes steamed from a platter. Mom replaced them as fast as the supply diminished. The big block stove along the west wall cooperated fully. Hedge logs crackled in the fire box, making a happy sound so early in the morning.

Before breakfast, Dad and the hired man had fed the mules in the barn by lantern light. The animals ate while they ate, so no time would be lost. Corn-picking started before the moon was down in the west.

I had always wondered in my small brain what went on in the farm kitchen so easily in the morning. I had no idea it was so exciting until this particular morning. The most exciting of all was the supply of gloves and hooks in a box by the door.

I was sent back to bed, for little girls needed to sleep. I did not sleep, however. I soon heard the mules led from the barn and hitched to the wagons in the farmyard. There was gentle coaxing for the animals to get into their places, and a jingle of harness.

Soon I heard the empty sound of wagons bumping across the frosty ground and the clatter of hoofs. The sound disappeared down the hill. I secretly wished I might be bouncing behind the frisky teams in the dark.

It was not long until I could hear the bang, bang of ears against the bangboards. How well those bangboards were named. Now and then when the wind direction was just right, I could hear the directions being shouted at the mules. "Whoa!" seemed to come through the early morning stillnesss the best.

When the first break of dawn appeared in the east, I stole from my bed and across the countryside. I could see the two wagons making their way across the field slowly but steadily. Sleep would not come. Picking corn long ago was such an exciting episode for a little girl.

When To Break The Law

A group of University of Nebraska students heard the pros and cons of civil disobedience at a weekend meeting at the Student Union. Not any of the advice they received was far off base, including that coming from a Lincoln attorney who argued the cause of civil disobediences.

The Lincoln attorney, Mark Buchholz, was selective, however, in his approval. Civil disobedience is another expression for law-breaking and takes on a different complexion when viewed in this light.

Buchholz cautioned that civil disobedience must be for sufficient cause, must be rational and must be open and deliberate. History tells us, of course, that there are times when civil disobedience is to be commended.

Such is the case when the laws of a land are such as to offend the sense of justice and morality of large numbers of people. The most meaningful example of this for the United States is the U.S. Declaration of Independence from England.

But much of the civil disobedience that prevails today does not fall into this category. It is simply breaking of the law when an individual finds things not to his satisfaction and acts accordingly.

We still must live within the framework of law and order as it is established by a majority of the people through a representative form of government. When change seems to us to be demanded, it is to be accomplished through the processes of elections, legislation, the courts and other legal means that are available to us. When civil disobedience becomes the rule rather than the exception, then we have anarchy and a society in which survival of the fittest becomes the only law there is.

They Raised The Barge

They raised the chlorine laden barge from the muddy depths of the Mississippi River two miles down stream from Baton Rouge, Louisiana, without incident.

The people from that city and vicinity are now free of the threat that has plagued them since Hurricane Betsy tore the barge from its moorings and caused it to sink two months ago. It contained chlorine to make sufficient gas to kill 70,000 people. The threat of that existed since September 9. It caused 117,000 gas masks to be sent to Baton Rouge. And the day of the raising the city was virtually without population. Residents of the entire area took to the road and traveled out of danger.

This was an event the community will long remember and will continue to give thanks for the skill of the Army Corps of Engineers, which after locating the sunken barge made careful and successful plans for floating it again. This was no small task for barges are made to float, not to be raised from a river bottom. A broken or punctured hull could have brought death to many, fouled the river to its mouth and could have brought damage beyond calculation.

In this urban society of ours we all live in constant danger which is difficult to appreciate except in accidental incidents of this kind. But it teaches a solemn lesson.

If a barge of chlorine carries death for 70,000, one nuclear bomb carries doom for millions, either by direct extermination or by disease and starvation and exposure.

We are learning to live with the bomb just as the people of Baton Rouge gave little prior thought to a barge load of deadly chemicals.

Another Institution Gone

We are constrained to call attention to the passing of a great, trivial American institution — the Burma Shave signs.

They have disappeared from the American roadside. The product now belongs to another company. And America shall never again be diverted by such verse as for instance, this: "The chick . . . he wed . . . let out a whoop . . . felt his chin . . . and flew the coop."

Such philosophies as that appeared on sets of little roadside signs for more than thirty years. A great deal of science was put into the signs. They were always three feet long, painted red and white, and appearing at intervals permitting a driver to absorb what he had read and build up interest in the next line. There were 700 jingles and 35,000 signs. No traveling American could escape their homely wisdom.

What finished off this American literary marvel? A number of things. Faster cars. Regulations abolishing roadside advertising, more subtle ways of advertising and a field full of competitors. The Burma Vita company was grossing $6 million a year from their brushless shaving cream. But good things can't last. Now the Smithsonian Institution is making a collection of the famous signs so posterity will know something about them.

It all started in Minneapolis a generation ago when the Burma Vita company couldn't sell enough of its liniment to suit. It got the idea of adding Burma Shave to its products. A British product that wasn't very good provided the inspiration. It brought improvements and chanced into the curious way of advertising it. And that did the job.

Now we shall miss such advice as: "Drinking drivers . . . nothing worse . . . they put the quart . . . before the hearse." Or this one: "The bearded lady . . . tried a jar . . . she's now a famous . . . movie star," or this one: "She kissed . . . the hairbrush . . . by mistake . . . She thought it was . . . her husband, Jake."

Is India Next In Nuclear Club?

WASHINGTON — Intelligence reports on both sides of the Atlantic indicate that within 12 to 18 months another applicant will be knocking on the door for admission to the nuclear club. A sixth member with the credentials of a nuclear device duly exploded will raise the nuclear arms race to a new pitch of intensity.

India is believed to be working in strictest secrecy toward the completion of a nuclear device. In public Prime Minister Lal Bahadur Shastri insists his government will not produce a potential weapon even though with India's advanced atomic development near Bombay this is possible in a relatively short time. Two small reactors built by India, in addition to one provided by Canada, are judged capable of providing sufficient plutonium.

Yet despite the official position in New Delhi the surmise — it is still an intelligence estimate—is for the following course of events. With the perfection of a low yield device India will announce that it is to be used in an underground explosion for peaceful purposes. Thus in the high Himalayas a nuclear explosion could blast out a new access route.

The theory is that in this way India would get the best of both worlds. It would have the status symbol of a potential weapon, thereby joining the United States, Britain, the Soviet Union, Red China and France, while at the same time proving India's dedication to peace.

This same optimism is not shared in the West. India could end up with the worst experiment causing a shock wave in neighboring Pakistan where the Indian claim to peaceful intentions would be taken as a thinly concealed threat. Added to the tide of fear and hatred coming out of the war over Kashmir, this could drive Pakistan closer to Red China, and it might precipitate what has until now been only a threat.

So far as is known no nuclear power has supplied an ally with nuclear weapons. If Red China were to give Pakistan a bomb to match India this would open the terrifying prospect of a race by dissemination. Even the announced proffer of a bomb —regardless of whether it might be delivered—would set off an alarm in every world capital.

☆ ☆ ☆

Shastri is expected in Washington in late January. American food shipments to India are continuing at the rate of about 500,000 tons a month. But this is one a month-to-month basis and Indian public opinion is concerned that new long term agreement has not been signed. Could it, the question is asked, be held up to compel acceptance of the American position on Kashmir or to bring about changes in Indian agriculture? Because a nuclear device would take sizeable resources in men and material it seems an irrational decision in a country in dire need. Given the tensions of today's world, reason may be outlawed.

Tax Collection

Lincoln, Neb.

Even with the best sort of cooperation between the citizen and our local governments, tax-paying is a painful and annoying matter. As it is practiced in Lancaster County at the present time, it is about as bad as it can be made.

I believe Lancaster is the only county in the state where taxes are collected separately by both the city and county governments. Efforts have been made for a long time to have all taxes paid in one place but it seems that our unenviable system goes from everlasting to everlasting in Lancaster County. To further bemuse the taxpayer, the city sends out a regular tax bill to each citizen so he knows exactly what he is to pay the city in both real estate and personal taxes. The county also sends out a tax bill for personal taxes but it leaves the taxpayer on his own so far as his great real estate bill to the county is concerned.

I recently called up the county treasurer's office and inquired why this is handled in this way. I asked why I couldn't get a regular real estate statement from the county as well as all other taxes. The answer came back, "because it's always been the custom." I should like to inquire how much interest the county collects on over-due real estate taxes. I also wonder how much of these taxes become over-due because the citizen doesn't know the amount and time of payment.

Our city and county governments, instead of simplifying the business for the citizen, seem to be getting further apart. For the sake of convenience and economy, it is quite obvious that we should have a unified city-county building. "Quoth the raven nevermore." Surely the comfort, convenience and welfare of the citizen of this great county ought to be sufficient to discipline a little bunch of bureaucrats and get our business attended to as if it were business and not politics.

It seems to me we are facing a pretty complete failure of local government in what is supposed to be one of the most intelligent and progressive communities in the United States.

Lack Of Interest

Unadilla, Neb.

Patriotism and good citizenship seem to be the exception rather than the rule! Our family was concerned about the lack of interest in the Veterans' Day parade in Lincoln last Thursday. The participants, ranging from Spanish-American War veterans to teenage ROTC members, provided a very fine parade for all. Yet many people did not give them even the courtesy of their attention.

I believe that when men who have served our country are on parade, they deserve our respect and attention. Or is "today's special" more important than the men who fought for us? Apparently some people have this opinion, as they were window-shopping as the parade passed.

I also believe that when our country's flag passes, it merits more than a disinterested glance over the shoulder. Yet this is what we saw.

"Love of God and country" needs to have meaning again. Our future depends upon it!

Common Sense

Scotia, Neb.

In your column of November 11, there was much food for thought. I compliment you on the editorial.

If the public isn't controlled by government, it is certainly controlled by the "big business klan." So it is a matter of choice for the public. People don't like to be regimented, of course, but I think they profit more by being controlled by the government than by big business. The Post Office Department is operated by the government, as one example.

I knew a man who let his crops burn up in the 30's because the government had "something to do" with the irrigation project. I also knew a man who, with others, was being treated by the bartender who filled one glass with water. This man braced himself by distorting his face and gulped it down. He was angry because it didn't hurt him — the bartender had "slipped one over" on him.

More people might do well to let the government "slip one over" on them. We have the REA plus many other beneficial things made possible only by the government. So let's swap our prejudice for common sense and have smoother going.

Toys Of War

Lincoln, Neb.

As the Season of Peace approaches, it is ironic that so many war toys are available to be given to children in the name of the Prince of Peace, God's great gift to mankind. If we stop to ponder the message of Christmas, the purchase of any toy which promotes the idea of killing or violence is unthinkable, for we are teaching the acceptance of violence as a normal way of life.

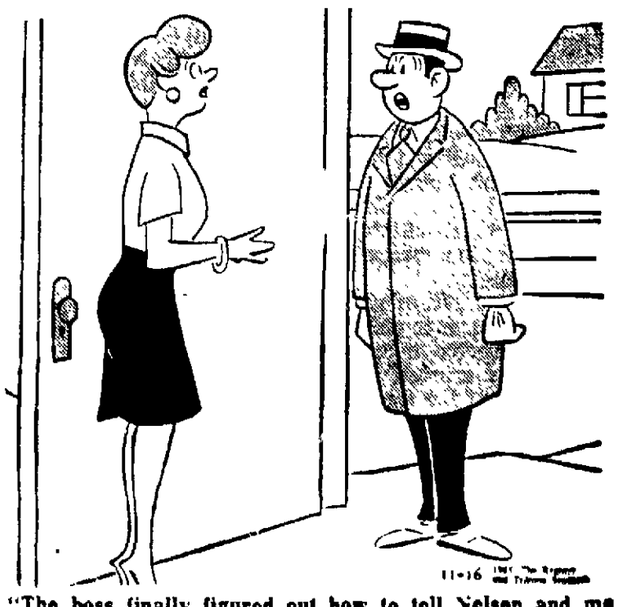

There is one company which should be commended for its fearless advertising in "Parent's Magazine" that says, "Nice Toys Don't Kill."

Dr. Spock in an article in Redbook Magazine told why he has changed his mind about the advisability of children's playing with toys that teach the acceptance of violence. It is worth reading and pondering.

We parents can encourage acceptable toys for children by making our wishes known through letters and by refusing to buy war toys. For our children's sake, we dare not ignore the message of peace and understanding which Christmas brings.

We have heard of such things as huge tire purchases of a size that fit no military vehicles and of purchase, for instance, of something like one million corkscrews. One would hope that if the stockpile objectives are altered to include finished products, the buying is not done by the military. We could end up with 2 million typewriter ribbons for machines no longer made, 500,000 fan blades when everything is air-conditioned, millions of nuts with no bolts and a vast assortment of other largely useless things.

Unbelievable Buys

Part of the aluminum business today stems, not from any price increase, but from a huge surplus stock. The government has nearly 1.5 million more tons of aluminum in stock than it needs and doubtless a substantial excess of many other materials. Thus, the stockpile business holds promise of some interesting times ahead regardless of the matter of who controls prices and how.

"Dad Said I Could Have It"

When To Break The Law

A group of University of Nebraska students heard the pros and cons of civil disobedience at a weekend meeting at the Student Union. Not any of the advice they received was far off base, including that coming from a Lincoln attorney who argued the cause of civil disobediences.

The Lincoln attorney, Mark Buchholz, was selective, however, in his approval. Civil disobedience is another expression for law-breaking and takes on a different complexion when viewed in this light.

Buchholz cautioned that civil disobedience must be for sufficient cause, must be rational and must be open and deliberate. History tells us, of course, that there are times when civil disobedience is to be commended.

Such is the case when the laws of a land are such as to offend the sense of justice and morality of large numbers of people. The most meaningful example of this for the United States is the U.S. Declaration of Independence from England.

But much of the civil disobedience that prevails today does not fall into this category. It is simply breaking of the law when an individual finds things not to his satisfaction and acts accordingly.

We still must live within the framework of law and order as it is established by a majority of the people through a representative form of government. When change seems to us to be demanded, it is to be accomplished through the processes of elections, legislation, the courts and other legal means that are available to us. When civil disobedience becomes the rule rather than the exception, then we have anarchy and a society in which survival of the fittest becomes the only law there is.

They Raised The Barge

They raised the chlorine laden barge from the muddy depths of the Mississippi River two miles down stream from Baton Rouge, Louisiana, without incident.

The people from that city and vicinity are now free of the threat that has plagued them since Hurricane Betsy tore the barge from its moorings and caused it to sink two months ago. It contained chlorine to make sufficient gas to kill 70,000 people. The threat of that existed since September 9. It caused 117,000 gas masks to be sent to Baton Rouge. And the day of the raising the city was virtually without population. Residents of the entire area took to the road and traveled out of danger.

This was an event the community will long remember and will continue to give thanks for the skill of the Army Corps of Engineers, which after locating the sunken barge made careful and successful plans for floating it again. This was no small task for barges are made to float, not to be raised from a river bottom. A broken or punctured hull could have brought death to many, fouled the river to its mouth and could have brought damage beyond calculation.

In this urban society of ours we all live in constant danger which is difficult to appreciate except in accidental incidents of this kind. But it teaches a solemn lesson.

If a barge of chlorine carries death for 70,000, one nuclear bomb carries doom for millions, either by direct extermination or by disease and starvation and exposure.

We are learning to live with the bomb just as the people of Baton Rouge gave little prior thought to a barge load of deadly chemicals.

Another Institution Gone

We are constrained to call attention to the passing of a great, trivial American institution — the Burma Shave signs.

They have disappeared from the American roadside. The product now belongs to another company. And America shall never again be diverted by such verse as for instance, this: "The chick . . . he wed . . . let out a whoop . . . felt his chin . . . and flew the coop."

Such philosophies as that appeared on sets of little roadside signs for more than thirty years. A great deal of science was put into the signs. They were always three feet long, painted red and white, and appearing at intervals permitting a driver to absorb what he had read and build up interest in the next line. There were 700 jingles and 35,000 signs. No traveling American could escape their homely wisdom.

What finished off this American literary marvel? A number of things. Faster cars. Regulations abolishing roadside advertising, more subtle ways of advertising and a field full of competitors. The Burma Vita company was grossing $6 million a year from their brushless shaving cream. But good things can't last. Now the Smithsonian Institution is making a collection of the famous signs so posterity will know something about them.

It all started in Minneapolis a generation ago when the Burma Vita company couldn't sell enough of its liniment to suit. It got the idea of adding Burma Shave to its products. A British product that wasn't very good provided the inspiration. It brought improvements and chanced into the curious way of advertising it. And that did the job.

Now we shall miss such advice as: "Drinking drivers . . . nothing worse . . . they put the quart . . . before the hearse." Or this one: "The bearded lady . . . tried a jar . . . she's now a famous . . . movie star," or this one: "She kissed . . . the hairbrush . . . by mistake . . . She thought it was . . . her husband, Jake."

Fight To Protect Wilderness Goes On

There's something mysterious about the congressional hearings being held this week (Nov. 16) in San Bernardino over the San Gorgonio wilderness area in Southern California.

At the last session of Congress, the House of Representatives voted two to one against permitting even 10 per cent of the San Gorgonio area to be used by ski jumpers and hotel operators for recreation.

Yet this week, one month after Congress adjourned, a subcommittee of the House Interior and Insular Affairs Committee is opening hearings on a subject already decided by the House. The subcommittee is headed by Walter Baring, the right-wing Nevada Democrat, and includes Harold Johnson, liberal California Democrat, and Craig Hosmer, the right-wing California Republican. Ken Dyal, a liberal Democrat who represents the San Bernardino - San Gorgonio district, introduced the bill. Though not a committee member, he will attend.

San Gorgonio is the only wilderness - type mountain area remaining in Southern California not developed for recreation, and a battle has been on between the ski-lift operators and the conservationists.

Such conservationists as Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas have backed up the U.S. Forest Service in urging that this area, close to Los Angeles, be preserved.

"An appreciation of America in its wilderness state is important training for young people," says Justice Douglas.

The vote at the last session of Congress to overrule the Forest Service was a bipartisan one. Pennsylvania Republican John Saylor led the forces for conservation. On the other side, voting for the ski lifts, were Democratic liberals Dyal and Lionel Van Deerlin of California.

Now that Congress has decided the issue, the ski lift-motel forces have been talking to their friends in Congress about renewing the attack. Hence this week's hearings.

It was Secretary of the Army Stanley Resor, not ex-Secretary of the Army Stephen Ailes, who made the trip to Charleston to pay tribute to Rep. Mendel Rivers of South Carolina when Rivers' bust was unveiled . . . Japan has refused to contribute troops to help the United Nations keep the peace between India and Pakistan. It was hoped that Japan, an Asiatic nation and a great believer in peace, would hlep to prevent a war which could engulf Asia. Perhaps because Japanese businessmen sell to both India and Pakistan, the Japanese government refused to cooperate.

Is India Next In Nuclear Club?

WASHINGTON — Intelligence reports on both sides of the Atlantic indicate that within 12 to 18 months another applicant will be knocking on the door for admission to the nuclear club. A sixth member with the credentials of a nuclear device duly exploded will raise the nuclear arms race to a new pitch of intensity.

India is believed to be working in strictest secrecy toward the completion of a nuclear device. In public Prime Minister Lal Bahadur Shastri insists his government will not produce a potential weapon even though with India's advanced atomic development near Bombay this is possible in a relatively short time. Two small reactors built by India, in addition to one provided by Canada, are judged capable of providing sufficient plutonium.

Yet despite the official position in New Delhi the surmise — it is still an intelligence estimate—is for the following course of events. With the perfection of a low yield device India will announce that it is to be used in an underground explosion for peaceful purposes. Thus in the high Himalayas a nuclear explosion could blast out a new access route.

The theory is that in this way India would get the best of both worlds. It would have the status symbol of a potential weapon, thereby joining the United States, Britain, the Soviet Union, Red China and France, while at the same time proving India's dedication to peace.

This same optimism is not shared in the West. India could end up with the worst experiment causing a shock wave in neighboring Pakistan where the Indian claim to peaceful intentions would be taken as a thinly concealed threat. Added to the tide of fear and hatred coming out of the war over Kashmir, this could drive Pakistan closer to Red China, and it might precipitate what has until now been only a threat.

So far as is known no nuclear power has supplied an ally with nuclear weapons. If Red China were to give Pakistan a bomb to match India this would open the terrifying prospect of a race by dissemination. Even the announced proffer of a bomb —regardless of whether it might be delivered—would set off an alarm in every world capital.

☆ ☆ ☆

Shastri is expected in Washington in late January. American food shipments to India are continuing at the rate of about 500,000 tons a month. But this is one a month-to-month basis and Indian public opinion is concerned that new long term agreement has not been signed. Could it, the question is asked, be held up to compel acceptance of the American position on Kashmir or to bring about changes in Indian agriculture? Because a nuclear device would take sizeable resources in men and material it seems an irrational decision in a country in dire need. Given the tensions of today's world, reason may be outlawed.

LA VERNA HASSLER

Patchwork Prairie Country

The wind blew chill from the north today. I seemed to hear a warning as it shrieked through the trees, scattering the last of the leaves. The dull leaden sky had an ominous cast, too . . . one that hinted of snow. I did not linger long outside. The cozy warmth of the house lured me quickly.

The Farmer put an extra sweater beneath his jacket this morning and I reached deep into the closet for a wool suit. The weatherman's report saying it was to be colder sent premature shivers running up and down my spine. Actually I wondered why I allowed myself to dread such a day, for should a day with temperatures in the low forties appear in mid-January, I would marvel at the delightful warm day.

Just let a day in mid-forties appear in early November, and everyone is in agreement—it's cold and raw and miserable, and how will we ever get through the winter?

A picker-sheller moved easily through the corn field last night as I returned home, stirring many thoughts from my own childhood when picker-shellers were as remote as the moon . . .

One dark morning I heard a stirring in the kitchen downstairs. This was soon followed by the tempting smell of bacon frying and coffee perking. I could not resist the temptation any longer. I crawled from my bed and made my way across the dark room. The floor was cold for bare feet. When I felt the stairway bannister, I knew I was making progress through the dark.

Slowly I groped my way down the stairs. At the foot of the stairs, I saw a stream of light beneath the kitchen door. I hurried across the dining-room and opened the door. The warmth from the kitchen flooded over me as I stood there in my long flannel nightgown, blinking at the light.

The hired man was there, along with Dad and Mom. The soft glow of the kerosene lamp upon the table added coziness to the kitchen. Hot cakes steamed from a platter. Mom replaced them as fast as the supply diminished. The big block stove along the west wall cooperated fully. Hedge logs crackled in the fire box, making a happy sound so early in the morning.

Before breakfast, Dad and the hired man had fed the mules in the barn by lantern light. The animals ate while they ate, so no time would be lost. Corn-picking started before the moon was down in the west.

I had always wondered in my small brain what went on in the farm kitchen so easily in the morning. I had no idea it was so exciting until this particular morning. The most exciting of all was the supply of gloves and hooks in a box by the door.

I was sent back to bed, for little girls needed to sleep. I did not sleep, however. I soon heard the mules led from the barn and hitched to the wagons in the farmyard. There was gentle coaxing for the animals to get into their places, and a jingle of harness.

Soon I heard the empty sound of wagons bumping across the frosty ground and the clatter of hoofs. The sound disappeared down the hill. I secretly wished I might be bouncing behind the frisky teams in the dark.

It was not long until I could hear the bang, bang of ears against the bangboards. How well those bangboards were named. Now and then when the wind direction was just right, I could hear the directions being shouted at the mules. "Whoa!" seemed to come through the early morning stillnesss the best.

When the first break of dawn appeared in the east, I stole from my bed and across the countryside. I could see the two wagons making their way across the field slowly but steadily. Sleep would not come. Picking corn long ago was such an exciting episode for a little girl.

Tax Collection

Lincoln, Neb.

Even with the best sort of cooperation between the citizen and our local governments, tax-paying is a painful and annoying matter. As it is practiced in Lancaster County at the present time, it is about as bad as it can be made.

I believe Lancaster is the only county in the state where taxes are collected separately by both the city and county governments. Efforts have been made for a long time to have all taxes paid in one place but it seems that our unenviable system goes from everlasting to everlasting in Lancaster County. To further bemuse the taxpayer, the city sends out a regular tax bill to each citizen so he knows exactly what he is to pay the city in both real estate and personal taxes. The county also sends out a tax bill for personal taxes but it leaves the taxpayer on his own so far as his great real estate bill to the county is concerned.

I recently called up the county treasurer's office and inquired why this is handled in this way. I asked why I couldn't get a regular real estate statement from the county as well as all other taxes. The answer came back, "because it's always been the custom." I should like to inquire how much interest the county collects on over-due real estate taxes. I also wonder how much of these taxes become over-due because the citizen doesn't know the amount and time of payment.

Our city and county governments, instead of simplifying the business for the citizen, seem to be getting further apart. For the sake of convenience and economy, it is quite obvious that we should have a unified city-county building. "Quoth the raven nevermore." Surely the comfort, convenience and welfare of the citizen of this great county ought to be sufficient to discipline a little bunch of bureaucrats and get our business attended to as if it were business and not politics.

It seems to me we are facing a pretty complete failure of local government in what is supposed to be one of the most intelligent and progressive communities in the United States.

Lack Of Interest

Unadilla, Neb.

Patriotism and good citizenship seem to be the exception rather than the rule! Our family was concerned about the lack of interest in the Veterans' Day parade in Lincoln last Thursday. The participants, ranging from Spanish-American War veterans to teenage ROTC members, provided a very fine parade for all. Yet many people did not give them even the courtesy of their attention.

I believe that when men who have served our country are on parade, they deserve our respect and attention. Or is "today's special" more important than the men who fought for us? Apparently some people have this opinion, as they were window-shopping as the parade passed.

I also believe that when our country's flag passes, it merits more than a disinterested glance over the shoulder. Yet this is what we saw.

"Love of God and country" needs to have meaning again. Our future depends upon it!

Common Sense

Scotia, Neb.

In your column of November 11, there was much food for thought. I compliment you on the editorial.

If the public isn't controlled by government, it is certainly controlled by the "big business klan." So it is a matter of choice for the public. People don't like to be regimented, of course, but I think they profit more by being controlled by the government than by big business. The Post Office Department is operated by the government, as one example.

I knew a man who let his crops burn up in the 30's because the government had "something to do" with the irrigation project. I also knew a man who, with others, was being treated by the bartender who filled one glass with water. This man braced himself by distorting his face and gulped it down. He was angry because it didn't hurt him — the bartender had "slipped one over" on him.

More people might do well to let the government "slip one over" on them. We have the REA plus many other beneficial things made possible only by the government. So let's swap our prejudice for common sense and have smoother going.

Toys Of War

Lincoln, Neb.

As the Season of Peace approaches, it is ironic that so many war toys are available to be given to children in the name of the Prince of Peace, God's great gift to mankind. If we stop to ponder the message of Christmas, the purchase of any toy which promotes the idea of killing or violence is unthinkable, for we are teaching the acceptance of violence as a normal way of life.

There is one company which should be commended for its fearless advertising in "Parent's Magazine" that says, "Nice Toys Don't Kill."

Dr. Spock in an article in Redbook Magazine told why he has changed his mind about the advisability of children's playing with toys that teach the acceptance of violence. It is worth reading and pondering.

We parents can encourage acceptable toys for children by making our wishes known through letters and by refusing to buy war toys. For our children's sake, we dare not ignore the message of peace and understanding which Christmas brings.

Simple Idea, Hard Work May Result In Thriving New Industry

By ROBERT PETERSON

Many hard-pressed breadwinners toiling in routine jobs have stopped believing in success. Yet there are scores of simple ideas floating around which need only be seized with faith and cultivated by hard work to create thriving new industries.

The other day I stumbled onto the remarkable success story of David Altman who came to this country from Lithuania at 15. Due to lack of money and language barriers he wasn't able to complete high school. Instead he went to work for his uncle who was a plumber.

A few years later he married, started making payments on a small home, and proceeded to father four sons — all born during the depression. With his limited education and with expenses of a large family devouring most of his income, Altman would have been the first to laugh if anyone had predicted he'd someday be president of a thriving manufacturing concern with offices on New York's Park Avenue.

The great idea which was to change his circumstances came when he was 47 years old. He was making some plumbing repairs at a turkish bath and a patron asked if it would be possible for the shower stall in his apartment to be equipped with a controlled steam device so he could take steam baths at home. Altman said he supposed so, and the man gave him the job. Altman proceeded to devise a gas-burning boiler, with assorted controls, which cost several thousand dollars to build and install.

He found himself thinking that if a rich man would gladly spend thousands to enjoy steam baths at home, there must be vast numbers of people of lesser means who would buy an inexpensive, compact device which would permit any enclosed tub or shower stall in an average home to double as a steam room.

In 1958, Altman and his eldest son began spending their evenings and weekends developing a compact, electrical generator for creating hot steam quickly with full thermostatic controls and meeting all safety and building codes.

By 1961 they had worked the bugs out of their invention, applied for a patent under the name Thermasol, and with an average price tag well under $500, began offering their product to the public.

Orders began flowing in from businessmen who wanted a daily steam bath at home to help them relax, from folks with sinus and neuralgic problems, from older people seeking relief from muscular and arthritic pains, and from owners of apartments, hotels and motels who found that private steam baths were an additional luxury they could offer patrons.

When I talked with Altman I asked how it felt to be head of a new corporation which — with virtually no competition, 600 distributors around the nation, and sales topping a million dollars this year — seems to have a promising future. "It's thrilling," he said thoughtfully, "but it's also a humbling experience for I know what it's like to be poor and to feel the future is bleak.

"What has happened to me is proof that America is still the great land of opportunity, and that being past 40 doesn't necessarily kill your chances."

MUD Water Well Field OK Supported

The city of Lincoln and the League of Nebraska Municipalities Monday joined the Omaha Metropolitan Utilities District (MUD) in urging the State Supreme Court to affirm an order granting MUD permission to establish a large water well field south of Omaha.

Attorneys for Lincoln and the league in separate "friend of the court" briefs contended State Water Resources Director Dan Jones ruled correctly when he approved the MUD application in June.

The Bellevue Rod and Gun Club, the Sarpy County Board of Commissioners, the Merritt Beach Co., Merritt Bros. Sand and Gravel Co., and Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Merritt have carried the case to the Supreme Court.

Lincoln attorneys claimed the protestants followed the procedures of protest as outlined in the Municipal Corporation Groundwater Act but then "hurriedly claimed that the act was unconstitutional all along" after Jones had filed his order.

Attorneys for the League of Municipalities said the protestants have an adequate opportunity to obtain just compensation if and when they suffer damages as a result of the field.

The 600-acre field, which would have a capacity of 60 million gallons per day, would be located on the north bank of the Platte River at Cedar Island about seven miles south of the Omaha Stockyards.

Insurance Dept. Probes Omaha Firm's Records

The State Insurance Department won a decree from Douglas District Court enabling it to take over records, property and possessions of the United Benefit Insurance Co.

Insurance Director Frank Barrett said Monday morning his office has the company's records and is conducting an audit on them.

The audit will determine what assets the company has, so any claims made against it can be paid.

The state has two courses in the case, Barrett said.

Either enough funds can be found to pay off claimants and creditors, or all policies and debts will be cancelled by the state.

"And I'm not optimistic about finding necessary assets for payment," Barrett said.

The state also won a hearing on Nov. 24 to determine if United Benefit should be liquidated.

The Insurance Department will go before Douglas District Judge Paul J. Garrotto for the hearing.

If the court orders liquidation, policyholders and creditors will be paid off on a prorata basis from existing funds, Barrett said.

The city of Lincoln and the League of Nebraska Municipalities Monday joined the Omaha Metropolitan Utilities District (MUD) in urging the State Supreme Court to affirm an order granting MUD permission to establish a large water well field south of Omaha.

Attorneys for Lincoln and the league in separate "friend of the court" briefs contended State Water Resources Director Dan Jones ruled correctly when he approved the MUD application in June.

The Bellevue Rod and Gun Club, the Sarpy County Board of Commissioners, the Merritt Beach Co., Merritt Bros. Sand and Gravel Co., and Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Merritt have carried the case to the Supreme Court.

Lincoln attorneys claimed the protestants followed the procedures of protest as outlined in the Municipal Corporation Groundwater Act but then "hurriedly claimed that the act was unconstitutional all along" after Jones had filed his order.

Attorneys for the League of Municipalities said the protestants have an adequate opportunity to obtain just compensation if and when they suffer damages as a result of the field.

The 600-acre field, which would have a capacity of 60 million gallons per day, would be located on the north bank of the Platte River at Cedar Island about seven miles south of the Omaha Stockyards.

Insurance Dept. Probes Omaha Firm's Records

The State Insurance Department won a decree from Douglas District Court enabling it to take over records, property and possessions of the United Benefit Insurance Co.

Insurance Director Frank Barrett said Monday morning his office has the company's records and is conducting an audit on them.

The audit will determine what assets the company has, so any claims made against it can be paid.

The state has two courses in the case, Barrett said.

Either enough funds can be found to pay off claimants and creditors, or all policies and debts will be cancelled by the state.

"And I'm not optimistic about finding necessary assets for payment," Barrett said.

The state also won a hearing on Nov. 24 to determine if United Benefit should be liquidated.

The Insurance Department will go before Douglas District Judge Paul J. Garrotto for the hearing.

If the court orders liquidation, policyholders and creditors will be paid off on a prorata basis from existing funds, Barrett said.

Council Okays Annexation Plan

Annexation of urban land along Cornhusker Highway between 35th and 40th received 5-1 approval Monday from the City Council soon after Mayor Dean Petersen and council members received notification of being sued for damages in connection with the annexation.

Council members Carroll Thompson, Ervin Peterson, D. E. Tyrrell, John Mason and Mrs. Helen Boosalis voted for the annexation. John Comstock opposed the motion.

Lincoln attorney Merrill Reller filed the $101,000 damage suit in Lancaster County against the City. The annexed land north of U.S. 77 includes some 120 acres he owns west of No. 44th, which he describes as primarily agricultural.

Peterson Not Cited

Reller cited the mayor and all council members except Ervin Peterson in his suit. Reller was not available for comment about omitting Peterson.

He is asking the court to enjoin the defendants from signing a contract with Consumers Public Power District for service in the area "until such time as the acquisition has been authorized by legal processes" and from proceeding with the annexation of the land to the city.

Reller further asks the court to enjoin the defendants from putting in a proposed water main across or along his premises and levying taxes against him for such water and from harassing or molesting the plaintiff and his employes and tenants.

He contends that the city defendants have entered into a course of conduct the purpose of which is to subject him and adjacent areas to confiscatory taxes and to unlawfully deprive him and others of the right to continue lawful operation of their land.

Last week at the public hearing for the annexation Reller reminded council members that he had won 14 of his 14 previous battles with the City Council.

In other action the council denied an application for change of zone requested by G. W. Kallos from A-2 single family to F restricted commercial on the northwest corner of 48th and M. Kallos had proposed to build a clinic for two doctors and two dentists at the site.

Planners Over-Ruled

The council, in the unanimous vote, over-ruled the recommendation of the City-County Planning Commission to grant the zone change and upheld the recommendation of Planning Director Douglas Brogden.

Kallos appeared at the public hearing Monday, describing the proposed structure as one which would blend with the residential surroundings. He said property owners in the area favored the zone change.

Missing Iowa Girl Located In McCook

Lamoni, Iowa (AP) — Nadine Bardo, 18, of Rochester, N.Y., the missing Graceland College coed, has been located at McCook, Neb., the college was notified Monday.

Dr. Albert Fuller, dean of students, said the girl was all right and was awaiting transportation back to Rochester.

Fuller said the girl's mother, Mrs. John Bardo, telephoned the college.

Miss Bardo disappeared a week ago Sunday night, apparently hitched a ride to Creston, Iowa, and boarded a train for Omaha, ostensibly bound for San Francisco.

Sheriff Gale McClure said Saturday that Jerry Dawson, a Creston college student, identified Miss Bardo from a picture as the girl he picked up and drove to Creston Nov. 7. He bought the girl a train ticket to Omaha, he said.

Mail Up 9.5% During October

The Lincoln Post Office reported a 9.5% increase in originating pieces of mail and a 10.2% increase in postal receipts for October as compared to last October.

Despite the increase, totals for the year are still behind last year's figures — originating pieces of mail by 9.1% and postal receipts by 7.9%.

The number of money orders issued and postal savings accounts are also down substantially for this period.

West Lincoln Rezoning Plan Delayed Pending Annexation

Proposed rezoning plans for parts of West Lincoln were not introduced at the City Council meeting Monday, but Mayor Dean Petersen indicated an annexation ordinance would be in the mill for consideration "probably next week."

Council members refused to Douglas Brogden's application for rezoning for the West Lincoln village which he proposed would become effective the same time as an annexation ordinance.

Brogden's plan called for the village to be zoned A-2 single family and H-1 highway commercial. He described the plan as as close to West Lincoln Village Board zoning as possible.

If the re-zoning application is not approved for effectiveness at the time of annexation, the area might remain unzoned for two months, Brogden emphasized.

Objections

Councilman John Mason and others objected to City-County Planning Commission hearings which would be held for the rezoning before annexation public hearings could be held.

The council agreed with Mason that no formal decision about West Lincoln annexation had been formally considered, and that proposing rezoning before that was "not good public relations."

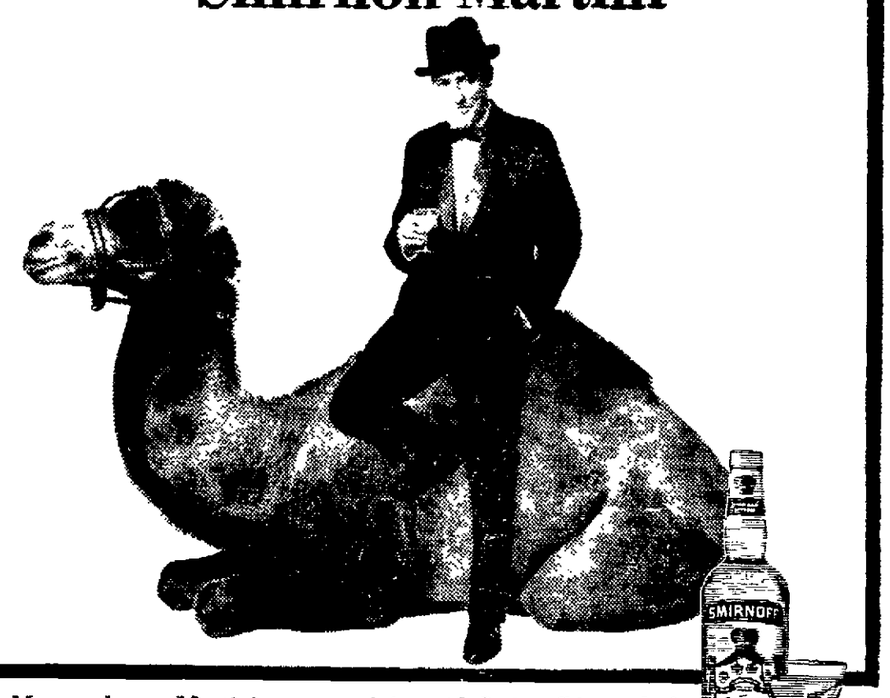

Suggesting that a comprehensive analysis of the ramifications of annexation—both for the city and the village—be presented, Mason said the study would inform the council prior to a vote on such an ordinance and might answer questions of possible opposition.

Will 'Soften Blow'

"Any information we can get out, and anything we can do to make feeling better will soften the blow," Councilman John Comstock declared.

Mayor Petersen indicated that there was "never any question in my mind whether the council would annex West Lincoln . . . It is an area that if not made a part of the city would be a hindrance to proper growth and development of Lincoln."

Scuffling Crowd Jeers, Cheers Kennedy Speech

Santiago, Chile (AP)—A scuffling, shouting student crowd jeered Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y., Monday night when he denied that the United States was responsible for the overthrow of Brazilian leftist President Joao Goulart.

But Kennedy wound up generally winning the estimated 5,000 university-age youths over with some blunt declarations of support for their revolutionary goals, some denunciations of U.S. policies which are unpopular with many Latin Americans, and some less than enthusiastic words about military-led governments.

He drew his loudest cheer when he said he has no plans to go to Brasilia and speak in the chamber of deputies Nov. 22, the anniversary of the assassination of President John F. Kennedy, his brother.

Fight Breaks Out

A fight broke out between extreme leftists and other students as Kennedy began to speak, and he was delayed about 10 minutes while the noncommunist students knocked down the leftist extremists and chased them from the gymnasium where the student rally was held.

The trouble began when several extremists threw objects at the speakers' platform. Police identified the missiles as tomatoes and other vegetables, but there was one unconfirmed report that a youth tried to set off a tear gas device.

The missiles missed Kennedy but struck several spectators including the Newhouse Newspapers' Bonnie Angelo, a member of the press group accompanying Kennedy on his tour of Latin America. Miss Angelo was not injured.

The students whistled and jeered when Kennedy, in answering a question after his speech, said that while Goulart certainly was not popular in the United States, the United States was not the cause of his downfall.

Hostile Questions

Cries of "Guatemala." "Paraguay" and dozens of shouts of "Brazil, Brazil" echoed through the big hall as Kennedy defended U.S. policy against generally hostile questions.

Kennedy drew both applause and derisive hoots when he said, in answer to one question, that if a Latin American country elected a communist president, the United States would not intervene to keep him from taking office.

He also was cheered when he called the Dominican Republic action by the United States a mistake, when he described the revolution and counter-revolution study known as project Camelot as foolish and when he called the Bay of Pigs invasion of Cuba "a dark day" for which the Kennedy administration was responsible.

"But don't judge the United States by this," Kennedy said. "This is not the true spirit of the United States—the true spirit of the United States is found in the work of 400 or 500 young people who come down here and volunteer to live in the rural areas and the slums to help Chile better itself."

Many of the Peace Corps workers to whom he referred applauded Kennedy at this and other appearances.

RFK Won't Seek '68 Presidential Nod

Santiago, Chile (UPI) — Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y., said Monday he will not seek the nomination as U.S. presidential candidate in 1968 because he supports President Johnson for re-election. Kennedy said he will seek Senate re-election in 1970.

Freezing Cold Blacks Out London

London (AP)—Freezing cold gripping most of Europe blacked out parts of London and two other major British cities Monday night, with brief electricity cuts forced by overloading demand.

The unusual cold and heavy use of electrical heaters forced the London electricity board first to lower voltage, then cut off power altogether in many parts of London. Some downtown offices blacked out, and traffic lights failed at the height of the rush hour, giving Britons a taste of what New York and the U.S. Northeast experienced last week.

The business districts of industrial Birmingham and Derby—home of Rolls Royce—were plunged into sudden darkness shortly after dusk. Department stores closed after shoppers were escorted out by candlelight.

Power was restored after factories closed for the night, but the freeze is expected to continue, with snow, fog or ice predicted throughout Britain.

No other countries reported any big power blackouts, but ice and snow blocked roads or snarled traffic from the Atlantic to Siberia and south to the Riviera. In Britain, hundreds of cars stalled with frozen radiators.

Moscow reported the coldest Nov. 15 in 80 years, 4 below zero. Snow fell on the Italian Rivieria, and even Madrid was cloudy and cold.

Kasavubu Asks New Cabinet

Leopoldville, The Congo (AP)—President Joseph Kasavubu asked Premier Evariste Kimba Monday to try to form a new cabinet, despite his defeat by followers of Moise Tshombe in parliament, Radio Leopoldville announced Monday night. It said Kimba agreed.

The broadcast gave no details.

Kimba was defeated on a no-confidence vote in a joint session of parliament Sunday night. The vote was 121 for Kimba, 134 against and 7 abstentions.

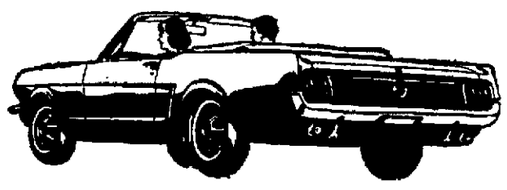

Kasavubu earlier had asked Kimba to stay on after the defeat in a caretaker capacity.

The vote against Kimba was viewed as a boost for Tshombe's chances of ousting Kasavubu from the presidency next year. Kasavubu already has announced his candidacy for another term. His present one expires March 21. Elections are to be held between Jan. 20 and Feb. 19.

'Father Of Television,' Allen Du Mont, Dies

New York (AP)—Dr. Allen Balcom Du Mont, 64, often called the "father of television," died late Sunday night in Doctors Hospital, it was announced Monday. He had been in the hospital for several weeks.

Du Mont

Du Mont was responsible for the sale in America of the first all-electronic television receivers. He established a network which carried the first commercial network television program.

He developed cathode-ray tubes—the display tubes for television, radar, oscilloscopes, and other devices—and developed and sold the first single-unit oscilloscopes, instruments which translate electrical fluctuations into waves visible on a screen.

Born in Brooklyn, Du Mont was interested in electronics from boyhood. He was graduated with a degree in electrical engineering from Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute in Troy, N.Y.

In his first job he developed a speedier tube tester which enabled Westinghouse Lamp Co. to increase its production of radio tubes a hundredfold.

Moving to the DeForest Radio Co., he helped build the first television transmitters using mechanical scanning discs.

In 1933, he had conceived an idea for locating objects by radio waves, but the Army asked him to withold a patent application for security reasons. Radar used the technique.

After World War II Du Mont converted to peacetime production and was among the first to market postwar television receivers.

He is survived by his widow, Ethel, of Upper Montclair, N.J.; a son, Allen Du Mont Jr., also of Upper Montclair; a daughter, Yvonne Godbey of Worcester, Mass., and six grandchildren.

The depth research people have been sounding the suburban housewife again. She is deeper than you think.

A Dr. Freiberg reports: "Six housewives out of ten think today's cars are too big. A number of those questioned volunteered that the streets are too small."

Thus on to Deep City.

☆ ☆ ☆

A car is the life line of the suburbs. When we first moved to the suburban groves, we bought station wagons.

The idea was in such outdoor surroundings, there would be a lot of trucking around. Rugged stuff. Transplanting peonies and hauling sides of beef to the freezer.

We all bought blue jeans and coconut sun hats like they sell at Waikiki.

Well, what has happened? The station wagon is now so gauche we wouldn't shop in it until after dark.

The sports car is the thing in the suburbs. And naturally, we had to buy a small British bomb or be read out of the country club. Bermuda shorts took over. With leather trimming on the pistol pockets.

There is hardly room to swing a cat in these cars—you have to hold the brief case out the side.

And bread winners are driven two blocks each morning to catch the big commute bus. We do not ride far. But we ride in style.

☆ ☆ ☆

There is a good deal of kibbitzing each other's cars at the morning commute stop.

"We had an Austin-Gaston," says the lady. "But now we bought the French Faux Pas. So much more roomy."

(Her husband's legs are hanging over the side. But we like to talk about roominess.)

The other lady, still driving an Austin-Gaston, is mad enough to bite reefing nails. But the biting answer is stopped by the next lady who drives up in a Bratwurst.

These little German windups go for $10,000. And the chick who drives it—well, we loathe her. That is the best way I can put it.

We don't loathe her publicly. The Austin-Gaston and the Faux Pas ladies cry: "My dear, how good to see you! What a darling car!"

(How they do it on his salary is a mystery. Probably a small down pavment and hoping to make it each month.)

☆ ☆ ☆

Anyway, Dr. Freiberg studied these suburban wrens. (A funny thing happened the other day. A lady caught her husband studying suburban housewives. She got him twice with the old .38 before he could holler. "Ven.")

The Dr. concluded: "She is the most overworked, underpaid chauffeur in the world. Each day she faces driving problems far more onerous than those which confront the average male driver."

He listed Madame's problems: The school car pool. Taxi servicing the moppets to parties. Red Cross meetings. Church activities. Delivering husband to bus and picking up same.

☆ ☆ ☆

This was fascinating enough for us to do our own study. And I surveyed a suburban housewife.

She: "Where did you put the car keys?"

Surveyor: "Where did I put the car keys? You were driving last night."

She: "If you hadn't insisted on that last martini, you could have driven."

☆ ☆ ☆

The survey was thus inconclusive—though it did show that subject housewife gets harried over practically nothing.

The surveyor attempted to find out if subject housewife thought the streets were too small—as per the Doctor's hilarious discovery.

But he only found out that they don't make the streets too small, Sam. They make the egos too tender.

Council, Opportunity Team OK Base Plans

By LUCILLE HUTCHINSON
Star Staff Writer

Use plans for Lincoln Air Froce Base received the blessing of the Lincoln Opportunity Team and the City Council Monday and are up for Airport Authority consideration and expected approval Tuesday morning.

The plan, which generally provides for aviation and education-connected activities on the base, was approved unanimously by the council, overcoming objections to complete Airport Authority control.

The six council members present tied a qualification to the assent given the resolution following a spirited discussion which saw the use map being opposed in the morning council meeting and the budget in the afternoon session

Problem Resolved

The Mayor's Advisory Committee and Lincoln Opportunity Team had previously adopted the resolution, and Monday morning the team formally inserted an amendment resolving a problem with the Nebraska Air National Guard over wording with reference to property declared excess by the Department of Defense The base is to be deactivated by June 1, 1966

FRED A. HERRINGTON

Council members approved the original resolution "in principle, with the understanding that decisions will be made in the future with respect to specific questions of land disposition by lease or sale, and that this approval is subject to specific budgeting by the city of future city expenditures."

Councilwoman Mrs. Helen Boosalis directed Mayor Dean Petersen to start discussions immediately with members of the Airport Authority to settle what property should revert back to the city for its control such as utilities.

Responsibility

She said that eventually the city should have the responsibility of other property not used for aviation-oriented activities, even though the revenue is going to the airport

The council further resolved that "a budget of not to exceed $12,500 be established out of general fund contingency division, for the fiscal year beginning Sept 1 1965 subject to the establishment of a similar budget by the Airport Authority in order to finance the employment of a consultant and coordinator to work under the direction of the Lincoln Opportunity Team as provided in the resolution"

Councilman John Mason, who is also a member of the Mayor's Advisory Committee, told the council that the intention is to hire Fred A. Herrington, a Lincoln tax consultant, as the consultant and full-time coordinator for the base-use plans and activities.

Herrington, a former state tax commissioner and one-time candidate for mayor of Lincoln, cannot be hired officially until the Airport Authority also approves the resolution and an adopted budget

Mason said that it is hoped Herrington's salary can be financed by federal funds from the Office of Economic Adjustment in the Department of Defense.

Bachelor, 50, Returns After Scooter Ride To Alaska

A man buzzed into Lincoln early Monday afternoon en route to what may possibly become the longest scooter ride in history.

Henry Van Der Scheer is the aforementioned man and he has propelled a nine-horsepower scooter from Nevada, through Canada and Alaska, and back to Nebraska.

Asked why he made the trip, the 50-year-old bachelor answered that he simply had "a hankerin'" to visit the country where he was stationed for 10 years as a soldier.

The deciding factor in buying such a small vehicle was the extremely high gasoline prices in Alaska. During the 61 days that he was in that state, he spent approximately $165 on gas and encountered prices of up to $1.10 per gallon.

The purpose for the visit to Lincoln is a rejuvenating trip for the scooter to the Cushman factory where a new cam shaft is the order of the day. Van Der Scheer has traveled all the way from Galkana, Alaska, on a patched shaft that broke 11 times on the return trip.

His traveling pack consists of a three-day supply of food (a necessity in Alaska where the towns are far aprt), a tent, a bedroll, a change of clothes, oil and a few tools for repairing the scooter.

Van Der Scheer is currently on his way to the Southern states where he plans to take up residence.

Army To Discharge Protester

Ft. Devens, Mass. (UPI)— A young soldier who picketed the main gate of this Army post on Veterans Day to protest the war in Viet Nam will be discharged from military service, the Army said Monday.

Military officials said Pvt. Steven E. Underwood, 18, of Fremont, Calif., would be discharged as "unsuitable for military service because of his emotional instability and immaturity."

Maj. Gen. Charles S. O'Malley Jr., post commanding officer, said he had approved a recommendation that Underwood, a conscientious objector, be given a general discharge under "the provisions of Army regulation 635-209"

The specific time of discharge has not been determined, Ft Devens officials said.

The recommendation for discharge was "based on careful observations of Underwood in various duties and his demonstrated instability and immaturity over a period of about 10 weeks," the Army said.

"Pvt. Underwood was entitled to appear with counsel before a board of officers to determine whether he should be discharged. He elected not to appear before the board but to be discharged for the reason stated."

Underwood, who was assigned to Ft. Devens last May, said he had "no gripes" with the Army "or anybody else"

"I want to make it plain that the Army is not railroading me into anything. The Army has been very good to me in every way

"I simply don't agree with the war in Viet Nam," he said.

Lab Building Will Be Designed For 2 Stories

By VIRGIL FALLOON
Star Staff Writer

The State Health Board Monday directed that the proposed state laboratory building on the University of Nebraska's East Campus be structurally designed for a future second story.

The 1965 Legislature appropriated $640,000 to construct and equip the facility for health and agricultural laboratories and veterinary services.

The units which willl be using the lab are requesting 30,000 square feet of space but the board was told only about 20,000 can be constructed within the appropriation

The board noted that the estimated $10,000 to $12,000 for extra footings and structural steel would be "cheap insurance" for when a second story will be needed.

Vertical Expansion

It said vertical rather than horizontal expansion is indicated in the future.

In other action, the board ratified a Department of Health agreement with the Lynch Clinic Hospital at Fairbury.

It guarantees continued licensing of the privately operated hospital unit an addition to the Jefferson County Memorial Hospital is built.

Verne Pangborn, division chief for hospitals and medical facilities, said the community hopes to build the addition within the next two years.

Will Be Converted

The Lynch Clinic Hospital will be converted to another use when the new addition is ready, the board was advised.

State Sanitation Engineer T. A. Filipi told the board that 20 Nebraska communities still do not treat their sewage, but seven "say they will build treatment facilities."

Filipi said the first water classification hearing will be held Jan. 13 as a step toward bringing all communities into compliance with Nebraska standards.

"Nebraska has already adopted standards of the Federal Water Quality Act of 1965," Filipi said, "and can be the first state to file a statement of compliance with the federal government."

Will Take 3 Years

He said it will take approximately three years to force the hold-out communities to comply with the state's anti-water pollution standards.

Filipi said a Missouri River flow study is under consideration by federal and state agencies.

"A rate of flow study for pollutants would be invaluable for communities using the river for water supplies," he said.

"In event that poisonous or radiological contaminated wastes were accidently dumped into the river, communities downstre could be warned to shut water intakes until the danger had passed."

The board re-appointed Norman F. Svoboda of Fremont to the examining board for podiatry for a two-year term.

The State Health Board Monday directed that the proposed state laboratory building on the University of Nebraska's East Campus be structurally designed for a future second story.

The 1965 Legislature appropriated $640,000 to construct and equip the facility for health and agricultural laboratories and veterinary services.

The units which willl be using the lab are requesting 30,000 square feet of space but the board was told only about 20,000 can be constructed within the appropriation.

The board noted that the estimated $10,000 to $12,000 for extra footings and structural steel would be "cheap insurance" for when a second story will be needed.

Vertical Expansion

It said vertical rather than horizontal expansion is indicated in the future.

In other action, the board ratified a Department of Health agreement with the Lynch Clinic Hospital at Fairbury.

It guarantees continued licensing of the privately operated hospital unit an addition to the Jefferson County Memorial Hospital is built.

Verne Pangborn, division chief for hospitals and medical facilities, said the community hopes to build the addition within the next two years.

Will Be Converted

The Lynch Clinic Hospital will be converted to another use when the new addition is ready, the board was advised.

State Sanitation Engineer T. A. Filipi told the board that 20 Nebraska communities still do not treat their sewage, but seven "say they will build treatment facilities."

Filipi said the first water classification hearing will be held Jan. 13 as a step toward bringing all communities into compliance with Nebraska standards.

"Nebraska has already adopted standards of the Federal Water Quality Act of 1965," Filipi said, "and can be the first state to file a statement of compliance with the federal government."

Will Take 3 Years

He said it will take approximately three years to force the hold-out communities to comply with the state's anti-water pollution standards.

Filipi said a Missouri River flow study is under consideration by federal and state agencies.

"A rate of flow study for pollutants would be invaluable for communities using the river for water supplies," he said.

"In event that poisonous or radiological contaminated wastes were accidently dumped into the river, communities downstre could be warned to shut water intakes until the danger had passed."

The board re-appointed Norman F. Svoboda of Fremont to the examining board for podiatry for a two-year term.

Mansfield Mystery Mission Suggests New Peace Effort

Moscow (AP)—The mystery-wrapped mission of U.S. Sen. Mike Mansfield to Moscow and East Europe aroused speculation here Monday of a new American effort to end the war in Viet Nam.

Mansfield and four other senators are traveling as a fact-finding mission. It was personally organized by Mansfield and President Johnson. The group arrived in Warsaw Monday night.

Mansfield is the Senate majority leader and a close confidant of the President on foreign policy matters. He has been particularly close to Vietnamese policy-making in Washington.

The Montana Democrat disclosed in Poland that he will go to Moscow Wednesday. He is expected to fly Saturday to Romania and then to Viet Nam.

Asked about Mansfield's trip, a U.S. embassy spokesman said he could not comment on the senator's plans in Moscow.

It was learned, however, that appointments were requested last week with Soviet leaders—presumably Premier Alexei N. Kosygin and Foreign Minister Andrea A. Gromyko.

Informed observers here speculated that Mansfield is involved in some new American initiative on the Viet Nam war. The very secrecy with which the mission has been organized was cited by the observers.

Mansfield said both in Washington and Warsaw that his purpose was "to see, to observe, to note facts and to report them when we return home."

This implied that Mansfield is sounding out the current position of Hanoi on a Vietnamese settlement by talking to those with the best contacts, the observers suggested.

DeGaulle Talk

They noted that Mansfield talked in Paris with French President Charles de Gaulle. Mansfield told a reporter later that Viet Nam was mentioned, but only incidentally.

The Russians have, however, been shy in the past of missions like Mansfield's because of Chinese criticism. China has charged the Russians with trying to sell out the communist cause in Viet Nam with a settlement that favors Washington.

Some senior diplomats here believe a secret visit was made here last month by Pham Van Dong, premier of North Viet Nam. Both Soviet and Vietnamese spokesmen have declined to confirm or deny that he was here.

Reports reaching Moscow indicate that some—but not all—leaders in Hanoi want to end the war because of suffering from American air raids. On the other hand, the observers noted, more North Vietnamese troops are now being reported in action in South Viet Nam.

Supersonic Airliner Timetable Set

Washington (UPI) — The United States Monday set a new target date of late 1966 for starting construction of the nation's first supersonic airliner.

The new timetable, announced by the Federal Aviation Agency (FAA), called for the first test flights of an SST (supersonic transport) prototype by 1970 and commercial service no later than 1974. The schedule would put the U.S. faster-than-sound giant about two years behind the British-French Concorde.

The Concorde's builders hope to fly a prototype by the end of 1968 and put the plane into service by 1972. The British-French entry already is under construction.

The FAA's revised and still-tentative deadlines were included in an announcement that an 82-man government evaluation team has begun assessing the competing supersonic designs submitted by Boeing and Lockheed.

The agency said the assessment will include wind tunnel tests, tests on key structural parts and a full analysis of all factors including safety, economy, performance and operational efficiency.

U.S. airlines, FAA added, will review all data derived room the assessment program and will give the government their own views on the "billion-dollar choice"—Lockheed versus Boeing.

The design assessment is part of the 18-month "back to the wind tunnel" decision made by President Johnson last June. At the time, the chief executive said that further research was necessary before the United States could commit itself to the massive SST program. Congress subsequently appropriated $140 million for continued research.

The assessment program pits Boeing's "variable wing" design against Lockheed's so-called "delta" design. The former features a wing that is swept back at about the same angle as today's jets for landings and takeoffs, but folds back sharply for supersonic flight. Lockheed's SST resembles an arrowhead and is similar to the Concorde in general appearance.

Sheppard Is Granted Hearing For New Trial

Cleveland (AP)—"Thank God for the federal system," Dr. Samuel H. Sheppard said Monday after learning the U.S. Supreme Court had granted him a hearing on an appeal from his life sentence.

Sheppard, convicted 11 years ago, of second-degree murder for slaying his first wife, Marilyn, said, "We're hopeful. We know we're right. Judge Weinman couldn't be wrong on nine points — it's ridiculous to think any judge could be wrong on that many points."

U.S. District Judge Carl A. Weinman of Dayton ruled in July 1964 that the former Cleveland osteopath did not receive a fair trial in 1954. Sheppard was freed July 16, 1964, but last May the 6th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Cincinnati reversed the decision and ordered him back to prison.

Sheppard has been free on $10,000 bond, living in suburban Rocky River with his second wife, Arianne, whom he married shortly after his release from prison. He corresponded with the attractive German divorcee while in Ohio penitentiary.

"We're amazed and very enthused about it," Mrs. Sheppard said. "It is everything I hoped for."

Sheppard said, "We're optimistic, but wary. We're apprehensive to say the least."

If the Supreme Court upholds Judge Weinman's ruling, Sheppard could be retried in Cuyahoga County Common Pleas Court.

"Retry me," Sheppard said, "I'm ready now. I have absolute proof of my innocence." He did not elaborate.

His attorneys are appealing the case on the ground that publicity about the case made it impossible to impanel a fair and impartial jury.

Should the high court reverse Judge Weinman's decision, this would block any further court action to free Sheppard.

Wilson Plans U.N. Speech, Johnson Talk

London (AP)—Prime Minister Harold Wilson is planning to address the United Nations in New York early next month and to confer later with President Johnson in Washington.

Qualified informants, reporting this Monday night, said arrangements for the British leader's U.S. visit have still to be completed.

But it is known he has awaited the chance to make a personal appearance before the U.N. General Assembly since his election to office 13 months ago. He was prevented from doing so last winter by the financial crisis that paralyzed the world body.

Wilson's side-trip to Washington for a meeting with President Johnson naturally would depend on the health and commitments of the American chief executive.

For both of Wilson's purposes, informants said, early December would be an appropriate time.

Rights Struggle Is Biggest News Story

. . . SAYS DIXIE PUBLISHER

Columbia, Mo., (AP) — The civil rights struggle in the United States was described Monday by a Southern publisher as "the biggest news story of our time."

The assessment was made by Buford Boone, publisher of the Tuscaloosa (Ala.) News, one of many news executives who appeared at the eighth annual Freedom of Information Conference at the University of Missouri.

"We Southerners have been forced into a corner by events," he said. "We have seen things happen we said couldn't happen. Schools have been integrated. The public school system continues. Private schools have developed and, in some cases, are operated well, but the number is relatively few. In such a period the demagogue and racketeer have found opportunity."

Full Coverage

He urged full coverage of all racial news and deplored local pressures to "play down news which might lead to heightened racial tensions.

The three-day conference is sponsored by the Information Center of the University of Missouri and the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith The theme of the conference meeting is "The Racial Crisis and the News Media."

Martin S. Hayden, editor-in-chief of the Detroit News, said that during the civil rights struggle editors may try to report the news and preserve the peace, using care in how stories are written, positioned and headlined.

"Predominantly white readers may not really be so much prejudiced as they are simply unaware of what the negro's life is like and what disturbs him," said Hayden.

De facto segregation in housing and schools, racially restrictive labor unions, slums heavily populated by Negroes, and white and black demogogues were cited by the newspaper executive as factors contributing to racial unrest and potential riots.

Racial Dynamite

He said Detroit, like other cities, has its share of the two ingredients of racial dynamite: The mixed fear and prejudice of too many whites who blame all crime and all neighborhood decay on Negroes, and the oversensitivity of too many Negroes who see discrimination behind every policeman's badge and at the root of all their frustration."

A California editor, James Bassett of the Los Angeles Times, called for increased communication between the races in order to avert future disorder of the magnitude of the Watts area rioting in Los Angeles.

He said the danger signals of racial unrest had long been apparent in Los Angeles and added that the city's basic racial problems remain, "just as they remain elsewhere in the North."

He said, "California has absorbed more Negro refugees from the Deep South than any other state in the nation," adding that "well over a million Negroes live on the Pacific Coast. More than half live in Los Angeles County."

Ted Poston, Negro reporter of the New York Post, said Negro communities often feel that newspapers work too closely with white public officials and police and reflect their viewpoints in news coverage.

STALLED BY RAIN

An unidentified motorist looks under the hood of a stalled car during torrential rains in Honolulu.. Major Hawaiian roads and highways were flooded by the downpour, and traffic in some parts of the island state was brought to a standstill.

Parker's Motion Being Pondered After Hearing

Lancaster District Judge Herbert Ronin Monday took under advisement Darrel Parker's motion for post-conviction relief following a hearing at which no testimony was presented by either side.

Parker, serving a life sentence for the 1955 strangulation-slaying of his wife, Nancy, is seeking release on grounds his federal constitutional rights were violated.

Judge Ronin received into evidence briefs from counsel on whether the Escobedo vs. Illinois case is applicable retroactively in Parker's case and the defense-introduced bills of exceptions from the April, 1956, original trial, and coram nobis in September, 1963.

The 1965 Legislature passed a law which permits defendants who contend their federal constitutional rights were violated in connection with their convictions to seek redress in the state courts instead of filing their actions in federal court.

Parker contends that his detention, the commitment and judgment of conviction were unlawful and in violation of the first, fifth, sixth and 14th Amendments to the U.S. Constitution.

The State has contended in an answer to Parker's request that the files and records of the case fail to show that Parker is entitled to release under the new law, LB836.

Morrison Plans Decision On Mead Farm This Week

Gov. Frank Morrison Monday said he will make a decision this week on whether to permit the continued operation of the Mead Penal Farm.

The governor said he will close the facility if "it is demonstrated the farm is losing an appreciable amount of money."

Morrison is scheduled to meet with the Department of Institutions advisory committee and state senators to discuss the Mead farm Tuesday afternoon.

The Mead farm broke into the news when a Safety Patrol report disclosed inmates' tales of repeated thefts, drinking parties, unauthorized trips and sex play.

Whale Halts Ship

Vladivostok (AP)—The Soviet news agency Tass reports that a large sperm whale harpooned by the whaling ship Tsikon whipped around and butted the vessel with such force the engines conked out. It said the engines couldn't be repaired and the ship returned to Vladivostok at the end of a towline.

ECUMENICAL COUNCIL FACTION PUSHES ANTI-RED STATEMENT

Vatican City (UPI) — An estimated 450 bishops called on the Ecumenical Council Monday to provide a forthright condemnation communism.

Heavy lobbying developed at the last minute to swing the bishops behind an anti-communist statement as the assembly began voting on a key document charting the church's role in the modern world. The decree ranges over issues from the cold war to the population explosion and is scheduled for 33 votes during the week.

A section on atheism denounces the "pernicious teaching" that man is materialistically determined and can only find freedom through economic and social liberation, but it does not name Marxism or communism.

DialogueWithAtheists

The bishops who moved to pressure the council into an outright denunciation also apparently objected to the document's appeal for "a sincere, although prudent, dialogue" with atheists. They feared this may lead to confusion in the minds of the faithful that religion and communism may be reconciled.

Lobbying prelates handed out hundreds of copies of a 500-word amendment to the council decree at the doors of St. Peter's Basilica as the bishops filed in Monday morning. Others received copies Sunday night at their residences.

The amendment listed tenets of communism contrary to church teaching and urged that "communism must be rejected not only because it is contaminated with atheism, but also because it has been declared intrinsically perverse by the teaching authority of the church."

It was based on a petition sent to the council on Sept. 29 which was reportedly signed by 450 archbishops and bishops. Some bishops had also asked for such a condemnation in speeches from the council floor.

Commission For Progress

The commission which redrafted the document reported back that it did not feel such a condemnation was necessary.

The commission reported to the bishops that it wanted to "leave the road open to progess" in church relations with atheists.

The presence of many Iron Curtain bishops at the assembly may also have had something to do with the commission's stand.

In fact, it has been reported that the council would not be a forum for anticommunist statements. This was reported to have been the basis for the attendance of Russian Orthodox observers at the gathering.

On the other hand, many Italian and South American bishops have felt the threat of communism in their traditionally Catholic areas and want church rejection of Marxist teaching spelled out.

The pleas for a condemnation of some sort were attached to votes on a section of the modern world document which discusses atheism. The results of the ballot were not announced, however and will not be known until Tuesday.

Rights Struggle Is Biggest News Story

. . . SAYS DIXIE PUBLISHER

Columbia, Mo., (AP) — The civil rights struggle in the United States was described Monday by a Southern publisher as "the biggest news story of our time."

The assessment was made by Buford Boone, publisher of the Tuscaloosa (Ala.) News, one of many news executives who appeared at the eighth annual Freedom of Information Conference at the University of Missouri.

"We Southerners have been forced into a corner by events," he said. "We have seen things happen we said couldn't happen. Schools have been integrated. The public school system continues. Private schools have developed and, in some cases, are operated well, but the number is relatively few. In such a period the demagogue and racketeer have found opportunity."

Full Coverage

He urged full coverage of all racial news and deplored local pressures to "play down news which might lead to heightened racial tensions.

The three-day conference is sponsored by the Information Center of the University of Missouri and the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith The theme of the conference meeting is "The Racial Crisis and the News Media."

Martin S. Hayden, editor-in-chief of the Detroit News, said that during the civil rights struggle editors may try to report the news and preserve the peace, using care in how stories are written, positioned and headlined.

"Predominantly white readers may not really be so much prejudiced as they are simply unaware of what the negro's life is like and what disturbs him," said Hayden.

De facto segregation in housing and schools, racially restrictive labor unions, slums heavily populated by Negroes, and white and black demogogues were cited by the newspaper executive as factors contributing to racial unrest and potential riots.

Racial Dynamite

He said Detroit, like other cities, has its share of the two ingredients of racial dynamite: The mixed fear and prejudice of too many whites who blame all crime and all neighborhood decay on Negroes, and the oversensitivity of too many Negroes who see discrimination behind every policeman's badge and at the root of all their frustration."

A California editor, James Bassett of the Los Angeles Times, called for increased communication between the races in order to avert future disorder of the magnitude of the Watts area rioting in Los Angeles.

He said the danger signals of racial unrest had long been apparent in Los Angeles and added that the city's basic racial problems remain, "just as they remain elsewhere in the North."

He said, "California has absorbed more Negro refugees from the Deep South than any other state in the nation," adding that "well over a million Negroes live on the Pacific Coast. More than half live in Los Angeles County."

Ted Poston, Negro reporter of the New York Post, said Negro communities often feel that newspapers work too closely with white public officials and police and reflect their viewpoints in news coverage.

Parker's Motion Being Pondered After Hearing

Lancaster District Judge Herbert Ronin Monday took under advisement Darrel Parker's motion for post-conviction relief following a hearing at which no testimony was presented by either side.

Parker, serving a life sentence for the 1955 strangulation-slaying of his wife, Nancy, is seeking release on grounds his federal constitutional rights were violated.

Judge Ronin received into evidence briefs from counsel on whether the Escobedo vs. Illinois case is applicable retroactively in Parker's case and the defense-introduced bills of exceptions from the April, 1956, original trial, and coram nobis in September, 1963.

The 1965 Legislature passed a law which permits defendants who contend their federal constitutional rights were violated in connection with their convictions to seek redress in the state courts instead of filing their actions in federal court.

Parker contends that his detention, the commitment and judgment of conviction were unlawful and in violation of the first, fifth, sixth and 14th Amendments to the U.S. Constitution.

The State has contended in an answer to Parker's request that the files and records of the case fail to show that Parker is entitled to release under the new law, LB836.

Morrison Plans Decision On Mead Farm This Week

Gov. Frank Morrison Monday said he will make a decision this week on whether to permit the continued operation of the Mead Penal Farm.

The governor said he will close the facility if "it is demonstrated the farm is losing an appreciable amount of money."

Morrison is scheduled to meet with the Department of Institutions advisory committee and state senators to discuss the Mead farm Tuesday afternoon.

The Mead farm broke into the news when a Safety Patrol report disclosed inmates' tales of repeated thefts, drinking parties, unauthorized trips and sex play.

Suits Predicted Over School Land Improvements

By VIRGIL FALLOON
Star Staff Writer

The State Board of Educational Lands and Funds chairman Monday predicted "a bunch of lawsuits" will result from an attorney general's opinion that non-approved improvements on state school lands become the property of the state.

Chairman H. L. Blackledge, Kearney attorney, said, "Those boys aren't going to take this lying down."

"Some lands have $50,000 worth of improvements on which personal taxes have been paid over the years," he added, "and they aren't going to stand silently by while the state takes over the improvements."

Test Suit Urged

Atty Gen. Clarence A. H Meyer has already recommended that a test suit be brought to determine the validity of the Justice Department's opinion.

Blackledge said the board will comply with the opinion until replaced by a court decision

The opinion held that improvements of a permanent character placed on school lands without approval of the state board became property of the state and leasees have no right to reimbursement.

Millions of dollars worth of improvements, including ranch homes, barns and other buildings, irrigation wells and pumps, on the state's 16 million acres of school lands are affected by the opinion

Blackledge who was re-elected chairman, said that the board will later direct that all non-approved improvements be appraised, with the values added to the appraised worth of the tracts.

The state board has for some years maintained a policy in lease transactions that the new leasee would settle with the old leasee for improvements with the state board taking no part.

However, Blackledge noted that the legislative directive for the sale of all school lands beginning next Jan. 1 pushed the improvements question to an attorney general's opinion.

"I think the opinon would have been the same whether rendered two years ago or last week," he said.

Tom C. Allington, Sunol rancher, was re-elected vice chairman of the board. Next meeting was scheduled for Dec. 13.

They are:

The governor also appointed Pat Morris of Hastings to the Hastings State Hospital Advisory Board for a term expiring March 1, 1967, and John W. Fulk of Lincoln to a three-year term on the Board of Examiners in Cosmetology.

School Official Stabbed Trying To Stop Essays

Brawlley, Calif. (UPI)—Deputy Superintendent of City Schools Dick Sharp was stabbed 13 times Monday when he attempted to stop a city councilman from distributing literature on the grounds of Barbara Worth Junior High School, police said.

Dr. Ben Yellen, physician and councilman, was questioned by police and then booked on a charge of assault with a deadly weapon.

Police said the stabbing took place in the school's bus parking area across the street from the school. It was witnessed by many persons, including students

Sharp was taken to Pioneer Memorial Hospital where his condition was described as "fairly good."

The weapon used in the stabbing was described as a pen-type screwdriver

Police said Yellen was distributing copies of his locally known "yellow sheet," when Sharp interfered.

Reporters found copies of Yellen's essays on car windshields parked nearby. One was entitled "Superintendent O M. Stemle and Superintendent R. Goodrich are betrayers of children."

RECOVER ONE STOLEN DESK

State Building Supt. Robert Newell Monday said one of four desks stolen from the Capitol last spring has been recovered from a shallow stream beneath a bridge near Roca

He said the metal desk apparently had been in the stream for some time.

Earlier, a typewriter stolen from a Statehouse office was returned in a burlap sack on the Capitol lawn.

Steen Awarded Governor's Prize

State Game Commission Director Mel Steen Monday was awarded the first annual Nebraska governor's trophy for his efforts in promoting wildlife and land conservation.

He will compete for a national president's trophy along with 49 other state winners early next year.

Gov. Frank Morrison presented the trophy to Steen, who has been director of the state commission for nine years.

The trophy is sponsored by the National Wildlife Federation and the Sears-Roebuck Foundation.

Man Fined $50 After Police Raid Disorderly House

Frank J. Edmondson, 2254 S. was fined $50 and costs in Municipal Court Monday after he pleaded guilty to a charge of keeping a disorderly house.

He was one of eight persons arrested in an early morning raid Saturday by Lincoln police. A Lincoln policeman, in civilian clothes, entered the Edmondson residence and on a pre-arranged signal from him, other officers initiated the raid.

Of the eight persons involved, three women and five men, six were fined and the cases of two were continued.

Guard To Delay Low-Level Flights

The Nebraska Air National Guard announced Monday it will delay a series of high-speed, low-level training flights over the state this week because of a heavy concentration of migrating ducks and geese.

The training flights will be held later this month

Col. Fred H. Bailey Jr., Guard commander, said the birds pose a threat to the jet intakes.

Tax Signature Drive 1 Short

The referendum petition drive to suspend implementation of the state income tax until after Nebraskans vote on the issue stood one county short Monday, with the deadline for filing petitions at 5 p.m. Tuesday.

Secretary of State Frank Marsh reported 37 counties out of the required 38 had passed the 10% petition signature mark to suspend the law.

Referendum drive sponsors filed additional petitions from 21 counties Monday, but the signatures were sufficient to push only nine more counties past the 10% mark, leaving the drive one county short.

Lancaster County referendum chairman George Mechling said a last-ditch drive would be conducted Tuesday in another attempt to push Lancaster County over the 10% mark.

The secretary of state's office already has validated enough signatures to place the controversial tax, passed by the last Legislature, on the November, 1966, ballot.

Counties going over the 10% mark as a result of Monday's additional filings were Boone, Dakota, Howard, Logan, Nuckolls, Saline, Stanton and York.

Franklin County was just five signatures shy of 10%. Phelps County was 23 signatures short, with 20 signatures still to be checked.

Lancaster County was 1,340 signatures short, but 940 Lancaster signatures submitted Monday still were to be checked.

Suits Predicted Over School Land Improvements

By VIRGIL FALLOON
Star Staff Writer

The State Board of Educational Lands and Funds chairman Monday predicted "a bunch of lawsuits" will result from an attorney general's opinion that non-approved improvements on state school lands become the property of the state.

Chairman H. L. Blackledge, Kearney attorney, said, "Those boys aren't going to take this lying down."

"Some lands have $50,000 worth of improvements on which personal taxes have been paid over the years," he added, "and they aren't going to stand silently by while the state takes over the improvements."

Test Suit Urged

Atty. Gen. Clarence A. H. Meyer has already recommended that a test suit be brought to determine the validity of the Justice Department's opinion.

Blackledge said the board will comply with the opinion until replaced by a court decision.

The opinion held that improvements of a permanent character placed on school lands without approval of the state board became property of the state and leasees have no right to reimbursement.

Millions of dollars worth of improvements, including ranch homes, barns and other buildings, irrigation wells and pumps, on the state's 1.6 million acres of school lands are affected by the opinion.

Blackledge, who was re-elected chairman, said that the board will later direct that all non-approved improvements be appraised, with the values added to the appraised worth of the tracts.

The state board has for some years maintained a policy in lease transactions that the new leasee would settle with the old leasee for improvements with the state board taking no part.

However, Blackledge noted that the legislative directive for the sale of all school lands beginning next Jan. 1 pushed the improvements question to an attorney general's opinion.

"I think the opinion would have been the same whether rendered two years ago or last week," he said.

Tom C. Allington, Sunol rancher, was re-elected vice chairman of the board. Next meeting was scheduled for Dec. 13.

5 Named To Abstractors Unit

Gov. Frank Morrison Monday announced the appointment of two attorneys and three abstractors to the newly created State Abstractors Board of Examiners.

They are:

James W. Murphy, Omaha attorney, five-year term; Robert R. Gibson, Lincoln attorney, four-year term; Myron J. Youngblood, Hastings abstractor, three-year term; James Rierden, Lincoln abstractor, two-year term, and Walter G. Schacht, Neligh abstractor, one-year term.

The governor also appointed Pat Morris of Hastings to the Hastings State Hospital Advisory Board for a term expiring March 1, 1967, and John W. Fulk of Lincoln to a three-year term on the Board of Examiners in Cosmetology.

School Official Stabbed Trying To Stop Essays

Brawlley, Calif. (UPI)—Deputy Superintendent of City Schools Dick Sharp was stabbed 13 times Monday when he attempted to stop a city councilman from distributing literature on the grounds of Barbara Worth Junior High School, police said.

Dr. Ben Yellen, physician and councilman, was questioned by police and then booked on a charge of assault with a deadly weapon.

Police said the stabbing took place in the school's bus parking area across the street from the school. It was witnessed by many persons, including students.

Sharp was taken to Pioneer Memorial Hospital where his condition was described as "fairly good."

The weapon used in the stabbing was described as a pen-type screwdriver.

Police said Yellen was distributing copies of his locally known "yellow sheet," when Sharp interfered.

Reporters found copies of Yellen's essays on car windshields parked nearby. One was entitled "Superintendent O. M. Stemle and Superintendent R. Goodrich are betrayers of children."

RECOVER ONE STOLEN DESK

State Building Supt. Robert Newell Monday said one of four desks stolen from the Capitol last spring has been recovered from a shallow stream beneath a bridge near Roca.

He said the metal desk apparently had been in the stream for some time.

Earlier, a typewriter stolen from a Statehouse office was returned in a burlap sack on the Capitol lawn.

Steen Awarded Governor's Prize

State Game Commission Director Mel Steen Monday was awarded the first annual Nebraska governor's trophy for his efforts in promoting wildlife and land conservation.

He will compete for a national president's trophy along with 49 other state winners early next year.

Gov. Frank Morrison presented the trophy to Steen, who has been director of the state commission for nine years.

The trophy is sponsored by the National Wildlife Federation and the Sears-Roebuck Foundation.

Man Fined $50 After Police Raid Disorderly House

Frank J. Edmondson, 2254 S, was fined $50 and costs in Municipal Court Monday after he pleaded guilty to a charge of keeping a disorderly house.

He was one of eight persons arrested in an early morning raid Saturday by Lincoln police. A Lincoln policeman, in civilian clothes, entered the Edmondson residence and on a pre-arranged signal from him, other officers initiated the raid.

Of the eight persons involved, three women and five men, six were fined and the cases of two were continued.

Guard To Delay Low-Level Flights

The Nebraska Air National Guard announced Monday it will delay a series of high-speed, low-level training flights over the state this week because of a heavy concentration of migrating ducks and geese.

The training flights will be held later this month.

Col. Fred H. Bailey Jr., Guard commander, said the birds pose a threat to the jet intakes.

Tax Signature Drive 1 Short

The referendum petition drive to suspend implementation of the state income tax until after Nebraskans vote on the issue stood one county short Monday, with the deadline for filing petitions at 5 p.m. Tuesday.

Secretary of State Frank Marsh reported 37 counties out of the required 38 had passed the 10% petition signature mark to suspend the law.

Referendum drive sponsors filed additional petitions from 21 counties Monday, but the signatures were sufficient to push only nine more counties past the 10% mark, leaving the drive one county short.

Lancaster County referendum chairman George Mechling said a last-ditch drive would be conducted Tuesday in another attempt to push Lancaster County over the 10% mark.

The secretary of state's office already has validated enough signatures to place the controversial tax, passed by the last Legislature, on the November, 1966, ballot.

Counties going over the 10% mark as a result of Monday's additional filings were Boone, Dakota, Howard, Logan, Nuckolls, Saline, Stanton and York.

Franklin County was just five signatures shy of 10%. Phelps County was 23 signatures short, with 20 signatures still to be checked.

Lancaster County was 1,340 signatures short, but 940 Lancaster signatures submitted Monday still were to be checked.

DEAR ABBY: When you suggested that asking students to make a family tree was an "invasion of privacy," I think you went too far. As a teacher who has taught in the public school system of Nebraska for over 25 years, I can tell you that this is a common assignment. In the first place, it is for the enlightenment of the student, not the teacher. No teacher would ask her students to make a family tree because she was curious about their family backgrounds. Knowledge of one's ancestors improves our knowledge of history, geography, biology, sociology, the arts, and I can't think of any subject (save math) that doesn't relate to genealogy. I think you owe that teacher an apology.

DEAR ABBY: I usually see eye to eye with you, but not on your reply to "IRATE MOTHER," who thought her daughter's assignment to make a family tree was none of the teacher's business. However, it sounds like an excellent way to encourage children to take an interest in their ancestors, and to link themselves realistically to history. Thank you for the idea!

NEWS of the suburban areas

There are young residents in the Fiene Heights area this morning who are reporting birthday parties just before the Thanksgiving holidays.

As we combed the neighborhood for the social news, we came upon a luncheon that was given in honor of a family who is being transferred to Rio de Janeiro.

FIENE HEIGHTS

A fall setting was used by the hostesses, Mrs. Herman Brice and Mrs. Butler Shaffer when they honored their departing friend, Mrs. Floyd LeFever of Elmwood. Fifteen guests joined in on the farewell luncheon which was held at the home of Mrs. Herman Brice.

Mr. and Mrs. LeFever and their three children will leave soon for their Rio de Janiero destination where Mr. LeFever will carry out a two-year assignment for the U.S. Geological Survey Department. Mr. LeFever was previously affiliated with the Nebraska State Historical Society on the University of Nebraska campus.

And we mentioned birthdays, so we will begin with the party to be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lowe on Wednesday. Being honored on that day will be Kathleen Lowe who will be observing birthday number nine. Fourteen Blue Bird friends will join her after school for a short party.

Then comes Sunday and more activity at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lowe. At that time a pre-Thanksgiving dinner will be served to 19 relatives. Driving up from Fairbury for the big day will be Mrs. Lowe's mother, Mrs. Emma Buckmeirer, and her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Cook, Jr. and daughter Jan, who will also be celebrating her 12th birthday on Sunday. Other guests will include Mr. Lowe's mother, Mrs. Ilene Waltman of Mahaska, Kan., and Mrs. Lowe's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Darrell Buckmeirer and Linda of Gladstone. Mr. Buckmeirer and Linda also will receive recognition on Sunday since they will be observing birthdays within the week—Linda will be seven the following Monday.

Miss Diane Sackett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Sackett, was 9 years old on Wednesday, Nov. 3, but the big celebration was held on Tuesday, Nov. 9, when the honoree and eight guests appeared on the Wayne West show after school. Following the television party, the group went to the Sackett home for a birthday dinner.

Diane's guests were Beth Brestel, Susan Damm, Rhonda Ossian, Carolyn Sanders, Cindy Watkins, Debra Scheidt, Denise Scheidt and Terri Krivosha.

Diane also was honored the preceding Sunday at a family dinner at her home. Guests were Diane's grandmother, Mrs. Mary Sackett of Agnew, her uncle, aunt and cousin, Mr. and Mrs. Tom McCarthy and their daughter Roxanne. Unable to attend the dinner was Diane's grandmother, Mrs. Florence Pierce, who currently is convalescing at St. Elizabeth Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. S. D. Hevelone have returned home from a two-week trip through southern states. The suburban travelers visited former Beatrice residents, Mr. and Mrs. Waldo Clough, at their home in Wharton, Tex., and en route home, spent a few days in New Orleans as the guests of their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Hevelone, and family.

at evening weddings

At a candlelight service Thursday evening, Oct. 28, Miss Carolyn Elizabeth Laue of Lincoln, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Emil Laue of Kearney, became the bride of Michael Fjell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Fjell of Polk. The chancel of Zion Lutheran Church at Kearney was decorated with yellow and bronze chrysanthemums for the 7 o'clock ceremony, which was solemnized by the Rev. Max Heinz.

The attendants, wearing frocks fashioned with green velvet bodices and slim skirts of ivory brocade, were Mrs. Robert Wiese, as the matron of honor, and the bridesmaids, Miss Jayne Gregerson and Miss Judye Gregerson, all of Kearney.

David Fjell of Polk, served as best man, and the ushers were Kent Sandell, Kearney; Bill Hansen, Minden; Fred Dornburgh and Gary Stohl, Lincoln.

The bride's sheath gown was fashioned of bouquet taffeta in traditional white. Floral appliques of jeweled Chantilly lace patterned the front of the long-sleeved bodice, and the slim skirt was complemented by a detachable train of the silk. A pearl-trimmed taffeta rose held to the head her bouffant veil of illusion, and she carried a cascade of yellow roses centered with a brown orchid.

The couple will live in Central City, where Mr. Fjell, a graduate of Kearney State College, is a member of the public schools faculty. The bride is a graduate of Lincoln General Hospital School of Nursing.

Bouquets of white and pink chrysanthemums appointed the altar of Trinity Lutheran Church on Friday evening, Nov. 12, for the marriage of Miss Marjorie Ellen Goeschel, daughter of Mrs. Beatrice Goschel, to Robert J. Alfieri, son of Mrs. John Downs. The lines of the 7 o'clock service were read by the Rev. Paul Krohn, and E. W. Scheer, organist, played the wedding music and accompanied Mrs. E. Schmeding, the vocal soloist.

Mrs. Mervin Kiene was her sister's matron of honor and only attendant. Her chiffon frock in the raspberry tone was fashioned in the Empire mode, and she carried a nosegay of white carnations.

Serving as best man was Mervin Kiene, and the groomsman was Roy V. Chrastil of Minneapolis, brother of the bride.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her brother, Mr. Chrastie, chose a gown of white lace. The long-sleeved basque was designed with a sabrina neckline, embroidered with sequins and seed pearls, and the bouffant skirt was completed by an overskirt of the lace which touched the floor at the back. A crown of jeweled lace held her illusion veil, and she carried an arrangement of red roses.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfieri will make their home in Lincoln, at 100 So. 28.

The bidding:

The opening lead is often the most decisive play of a hand, and many contracts stand or fall entirely on the choice of the opening lead.

This is one department of play which does not lend itself to rules that can be faithfully followed. Circumstances differ from hand to hand when it comes to selecting a lead, and, while the choice is not always clear-cut the dominating principle is that you try to lead what is good for your side instead of what is good for your hand.

Take this deal, where West has a choice of leads. He can lead the four of clubs on the basis that it is the fourth best card of his longest and strongest suit.

Or he can lead a heart on the basis that he is more likely to find partner with heart length than club length because the opponents made no effort to find a heart contract.

However, both these leads tend to stress the development of West's own hand instead of stressing the development of the combined partnership values. The lead most likely to hit pay dirt is the queen of spades, and, in the actual hand, South must go down if West selects that lead.

There are good reasons to justify the spade lead. First is the likelihood that East has spade length (judging from the bidding), and second is the ease with which East's indicated long suit can be set up if he has either the king or ace.

East needs much more in high-card strength to support a heart or club lead than he needs to support a spade lead.

As it happens, the spade lead leads to down one, which doesn't really prove anything, but note what happens if West leads a heart or a club. In the former case, South makes five notrump; in the latter case, South makes six notrump.

Town News

All will be quiet at the Nebraska stadium on Saturday, but in spite of a non-game weekend, there is activity to mention.

The 100 Club, for instance, is having a 'Turkey Trot' Saturday evening at Hotel Lincoln. The party, as usual is a dinner dance, and in charge of the details is a committee composed of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Knudsen, chairmen; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Durrie, Mr. and Mrs. Gene Eaton, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Edwards, Mr. and Mrs. Glen Wagner, and Dr. and Mrs. John R. Thompson.

The provisionals of the Lincoln Junior League will be out and about on Friday when they will be the honored guests at a tea for which the members of the League's Sustaining group will serve as hostesses.

The Provisional members of the League, as you doubtless already know, includes those who were elected to membership last June, and who will not become active League members until they have completed their course of training in civic and community activities.

The tea will be held at the home of Mrs. Avery Forke.

Mark Of Great Team

In football, there are three ways of proving your greatness as a team and Saturday Nebraska completed the cycle for the 1965 season.

The first mark of a great team is its ability to come from behind. The Huskers had passed that test earlier against Missouri.

The second test is your ability to completely obliterate certain opponents. The Huskers passed this test as early as the first game against Texas Christian.

The third test comes when you can play a bad game and still win. When a team that is merely good plays a bad game, it loses. When a great team plays a bad game, it still finds some way to win.

No team can go through a season without one bad game. Notre Dame didn't do it more than a decade ago when they were running roughshod over all opposition.

But when they had their bad game, they still managed to win by a touchdown or less.

Pressure On Defense

Nebraska's offense put more pressure on its defense Saturday than it had at any time all season after giving them a day off last week when the offense kept the ball all afternoon against Kansas.

Any team that can lose three fumbles to stop drives such as the Huskers did and still come back with defeat right in front of them deserves a great deal of credit.

As anyone in any line of business knows often when things start going bad, it's easy to lose poise and one mistake piles on another. This could have happened to the Huskers Saturday.

But it didn't. We'll bet you're lying if you can say that you sat in the stadium at Stillwater during the final drive and didn't expect to see the ball pop into the air on every plunge into the line.

Every Husker fan had to be on the edge of his seat expecting the next play to result in a pass interception, a fumble, a 15-yard penalty, a missed block or some other mistake that could have thwarted the drive that had to go 75 yards in 15 plays.

With the pressure that rested on every one of the 11 players on the field at the time, it would have been easy for anxiety to cause a lineman to jump ahead of the starting count.

Pressure On Duda

And much of the pressure was on a thick-legged, nonathletic looking Husker quarterback who was having one of his poorer days in a Scarlet and White uniform.

Fred Duda had had passes dropped, had missed receivers with others and had one intercepted. He had had trouble keeping a drive going. But when the pressure was on and the Huskers could not afford to make even one of the mistakes they had made earlier, Duda directed the attack flawlessly.

He came up with two key third down plays, once handing off to Harry Wilson on a third and two, and once passing to Wilson on a third and eight. A mistake on either play would have meant defeat for the Huskers.

Duda likely will lose the all-Big Eight quarterback spot to Missouri's Gary Lane, but if you were trapped in a cave, Duda is the fellow you would want trying to lead you out.

And it wouldn't be a bad idea to have fellows like Tony Jeter, Freeman White, Dennis Carlson, Jim Brown, LaVerne Allers, Jim Osberg, Kelly Peterson, Pete Tatman, Harry Wison and Ron Kirkland tearing away the debris.

Devaney Poses Vacation Question For NU Fans

. . . CHOICE OF MIAMI OR DALLAS

By HAL BROWN
StarSportsEditor

Most complaints about the Nebraska bowl choice of the Orange over the Cotton were squelched Monday by Husker coach Bob Devaney at the NU Extra Point Club weekly Quarterback Luncheon.

"If you were looking for a vacation spot, how many of you would choose Dallas (Cotton Bowl) over Miami (Orange Bowl),?" Devaney asked, throwing the decision right into the lap of the fans.

The response was a hearty round of applause.

Devaney prefaced his vacation tickler by repeating his thoughts that a bowl should be a reward for a successful season and that the players should be allowed to go where they would enjoy themselves the most.

"If we could have waited for developments until after the season ended, the choice might have been different," Devaney pointed out. "But none of the three bowls would wait. We had to make the decision with three games to go.

"If we could have waited and the polls would have shown that Arkansas was No. 1 and we were No. 2, we'd have been glad to play them.

"But if we were No. 1 and they were No. 2, we probably would have said to hell with them.

The Husker coach also pointed out that most of the players had been to Dallas a year ago, but had not been on the team that went to Miami two years ago.

"And we certainly didn't pick any softie when we chose to meet Alabama in the Orange Bowl." he continued. "Alabama has one of the finest bowl records in the country. I think they are about 10-5-1 in bowls.

"But I really don't see why we can't play some fine educational institution," he quipped. "I think we should have the opportunity to play one of the Ivy League schools there (the Orange Bowl)."

Devaney also emphasized that the rejection of the Cotton Bowl bid was made graciously.

"We certainly would never hesitate to return to the Cotton Bowl." he explained. "They treated us wonderfully and the people associated with the Cotton Bowl are great people."

Reviewing the win over Oklahoma State, Devaney told the full house, "As I said last week, it's not our object to try to run up the score against anyone.

"Football is a game for the entertainment of spectators and they should have been entertained Saturday.

"We made a lot of mistakes Saturday, but our biggest mistake appeared to be that we scored that last touchdown too quickly.

"We left them with 38 seconds and their own time keeper. They ran 14 plays in that 38 seconds and damn near got into the end zone."

Explaining how defensive back Bill Johnson wound up with the game ball, Devaney noted, "The kids threw me the ball in the locker room and I knew I hadn't done anything to deserve it. So I started to give it to Harry Wilson, who played a great game for us on offense.

"But Harry said give it to Johnson. It wasn't until then that I knew Johnson was the player who made the final stop on Walt Garrison."

Devaney was full of praise for Garrison, the Oklahoma State fullback.

"I talked to him after the game and told him he was the finest fullback we had played against since I came to the Big Eight.

"In fact, I'd say he's the finest back. I didn't say, however, that he was the finest I had seen because I was not comparing him with some of our fullbacks like Bill Thornton, Rudy Johnson and Frank Solich."

More On Luncheon, Page 18

Devaney also pointed out that Garrison would be a member of the West squad in the East-West Shrine Game Dec. 31 in San Francisco. Devaney was scheduled to coach the West team, but will have to pass up the assignment with his Huskers in the Orange Bowl.

"Garrison was one of the first persons I suggested when we made our plans for picking the West squad," Devaney said. "So you'll be seeing him in that game and you also likely will be seeing plenty of him in the pro leagues the next few years."

The NU coach called the final touchdown drive that covered 75 yards in 15 plays "the finest single drive I have seen.

"It compares a little with the one we made late in the game a couple of years ago against North Carolina State to win.

"We hammered this one out all the way without mistakes and it made it even tougher because Oklahoma State gambled that we weren't going to throw which made our running against them tough."

Huskers Still 3rd With AP

By Associated Press

Michigan State, moving toward a showdown meeting with Notre Dame, continued to show the way Monday as the No. 1 team of the nation in The Associated Press' weekly college football poll.

Arkansas, with 21 straight victories over a two-year span, was a close second, with unbeaten Nebraska and once-defeated Notre Dame not far behind.

Alabama, Southern California and UCLA followed in that order as the first seven teams maintained the same ratings as last week. Missouri edged into the No. 8 spot and Texas Tech and Florida moved into the Top Ten, displacing beaten Tennessee and Kentucky.

Duffy Daughtery's Spartans probably were looking ahead to the Irish and had to come from behind Saturday to beat Indiana 27-13 for the Big Ten championship.

Notre Dame also was paying more attention to Saturday's date at South Bend than the business at hand but woke up in the last period to top North Carolina, 17-0.

Arkansas remained at Michigan State's shoulder by defeating Southern Methodist 24-3, but Nebraska had to sweat out a 21-17 edge over Oklahoma State to nail down a tie for the Big Eight crown and an Orange Bowl berth.

Michigan State received 31 of 48 first place votes in the poll of a special panel of sports writers and broadcasters. Arkansas had 15 firsts and Nebraska two.

NU Falls To Third In UPI

By United Press International

Arkansas took over second place Monday in the United Press International major college football ratings and trimmed top-ranked Michigan State's lead to its lowest advantage since the Spartans took over first place a month ago.

Arkansas drew 13 first-place votes from the 35 coaches on the UPI rating board and cut the Spartans lead from 34 points to 18. The Razorbacks pulled ahead of Nebraska, which narrowly averted defeat at the hands of Oklahoma State Saturday and fell to third.

Michigan State received 19 first-place ballots (two less than last week) and Nebraska gained the remaining three votes. The top three teams all have perfect 9-0 records.

Notre Dame, which faces Michigan State at South Bend, Ind., Saturday in a game that could decide the national championship, slipped slightly but held fourth place following its 17-0 victory over North Carolina.

Southern California, Alabama, U.C.L.A. and Missouri continued to rank 5-6-7-8 in that order.

Texas Tech, with an 8-1 record, jumped from 11th to ninth place and Purdue edged Florida for the 10th spot. Tennessee and Kentucky, which stood 9-10 respectively last week, fell out of the top 10 following losses. Tennessee dropped to 13th and Kentucky slipped to an 18th-place tie with Syracuse and Tulsa.

Nebraska Frosh Gain Tie For Big 8 Crown

By BARRY BURKHART
Star Sports Writer

Nebraska's freshmen gained a tie for the unofficial Big Eight crown by routing Iowa State's frosh, 41-18, at Memorial Stadium Monday.

The Husker win, in a game rescheduled from last Friday, tied NU with Kansas, both with 3-1 records. Nebraska's only loss was to Missouri, while Kansas lost to Nebraska.

Bob Best, NU safety man, started the Husker scoring spree with 8:54 left in the first quarter when he took an Iowa State punt on his own 25 and scampered through a sideline passageway of Husker blockers for the touchdown. Denis Galbraith added the extra point, and NU led 7-0.

Nebraska's second tally came in the same quarter on a 15-yard scoring pass from quarterback Frank Patrick to left end Bob Moore.

The scoring march was set up by Russell Stigge's recovery of an Iowa State fumble on the Cyclone 37.

Iowa State got back into the game quickly, however, as it capitalized on Husker errors to score two quick touchdowns in the closing minutes of the second quarter.

After ISU recovered Best's fumble of a punt return on the Nebraska 26, quarterback John Warder scrambled away from potential tacklers and hit halfback Jeff Simonds in the end zone for a touchdown, making the score 14-6. The extra point attempt by Jim Hedemann missed.

On the third play after the kickoff, Iowa State's Steve Zajac picked off a pass by Patrick and returned it 53 yards to the Nebraska 18.

On the first play from scrimmage, Warder found Simonds open again and lofted an aerial into the halfback's arms for the second Cyclone TD. Warder attempted to run the extra point but was forced out of bounds at the one-foot line.

Leading by only two points, with 1:50 left in the half, the Huskers put on a tremendous drive that netted them another touchdown before they left the field.

Starting on his own 37, Patrick threw five consecutive, complete passes. The final one was a 21-yard pitch to right end Sherwin Jarmon for the touchdown. Galbraith added the point after, and NU led, 21-12.

After Patrick scored on an eight-yard roll-out with 12:08 left in the third period, the game turned into a rout.

Nebraska scored once again in the third quarter on a 10-yard run by right half Tom Penney, and the Husker reserves added another in the fourth period on a nine-yard scamper by speedster Michael Green of Omaha.

Quarterback Patrick was the outstanding offensive player for the Huskers, completing 10 of 17 passes for 111 yards and running for 85, mostly on the roll-out.

West Point Gains Top In Class C; York In B

By DON FORSYTHE
Prep Sports Writer

York and West Point reign as the 1965 Class B and C football champions in the Nebraska Prep Ratings.

York, which closed with eight straight wins after a season-opening tie with Class A Columbus, moved into the No. 1 spot after the fifth week of play and held a slim margin through the finish.

West Point, a Class B contender last year, cracked the Class C ratings at the No. 2 spot after four weeks of play and continued at that level until last week when it got a shot at pace-setting Laurel.

The Cadets didn't waste the opportunity as they snapped Laurel's 28-game winning streak with a 32-7 triumph in the Husker Conference playoff.

Had the Cadets not handled Laurel so easily Bertrand was waiting in the wings to take the No. 1 spot.

The Republican Valley power throttled Franklin, 35-0, in its conference playoff battle and moves from No. 3 to No. 2 in the final ratings.

Laurel drops to the No. 3 spot, keeping prestige because of its fine showing against Class B teams.

Perennial power Grant is No. 4 and Loup City, which like West Point dropped down from Class B, finishes at the No. 5 spot.

Rushville, Wakefield, Ceresco, Newman Grove and Scribner complete the top ten.

Final week shuffling in the Class B ranks was prompted by the 34-7 win by David City Aquinas over previously unbeaten Omaha Cathedral.

The win boosted the Monarchs, losers only to West Point Central Catholic and Class A Pius X, to the No. 5 spot and sent Cathedral tumbling to No. 10.

Comment—Tight race for top honors among top three teams. Aquinas moved up in the final standings by blasting Cathedral out of the unbeaten category, 34-7.

Class C

1—West Point (10-0)	6—Rushville (8-1-1)

Comment—Long wait to move into No. 1 position was worthwhile for West Point, which unseated previous leader Laurel, 32-7, in conference playoff. Bertrand presses, but can't quite match the quality of West Point's schedule.

Devaney Poses Vacation Question For NU Fans

. . . CHOICE OF MIAMI OR DALLAS

Most complaints about the Nebraska bowl choice of the Orange over the Cotton were squelched Monday by Husker coach Bob Devaney at the NU Extra Point Club weekly Quarterback Luncheon.

NU Falls To Third In UPI

By United Press International

Arkansas took over second place Monday in the United Press International major college football ratings and trimmed top-ranked Michigan State's lead to its lowest advantage since the Spartans took over first place a month ago.

Arkansas drew 13 first-place votes from the 35 coaches on the UPI rating board and cut the Spartans lead from 34 points to 18. The Razorbacks pulled ahead of Nebraska, which narrowly averted defeat at the hands of Oklahoma State Saturday and fell to third.

Michigan State received 19 first-place ballots (two less than last week) and Nebraska gained the remaining three votes. The top three teams all have perfect 9-0 records.

Notre Dame, which faces Michigan State at South Bend, Ind., Saturday in a game that could decide the national championship, slipped slightly but held fourth place following its 17-0 victory over North Carolina.

Southern California, Alabama, U.C.L.A. and Missouri continued to rank 5-6-7-8 in that order.

Texas Tech, with an 8-1 record, jumped from 11th to ninth place and Purdue edged Florida for the 10th spot. Tennessee and Kentucky, which stood 9-10 respectively last week, fell out of the top 10 following losses. Tennessee dropped to 13th and Kentucky slipped to an 18th-place tie with Syracuse and Tulsa.

West Point Gains Top In Class C; York In B

By DON FORSYTHE
Prep Sports Writer

York and West Point reign as the 1965 Class B and C football champions in the Nebraska Prep Ratings.

York, which closed with eight straight wins after a season-opening tie with Class A Columbus, moved into the No. 1 spot after the fifth week of play and held a slim margin through the finish.

West Point Central Catholic and Albion, both sporting perfect 9-0 records, kept extreme pressure on the front-running Dukes.

West Point, a Class B contender last year, cracked the Class C ratings at the No. 2 spot after four weeks of play and continued at that level until last week when it got a shot at pace-setting Laurel.

The Cadets didn't waste the opportunity as they snapped Laurel's 28-game winning streak with a 32-7 triumph in the Husker Conference playoff.

Had the Cadets not handled Laurel so easily Bertrand was waiting in the wings to take the No. 1 spot.

The Republican Valley power throttled Franklin, 35-0, in its conference playoff battle and moves from No. 3 to No. 2 in the final ratings.

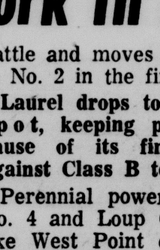

Laurel drops to the No. 3 spot, keeping prestige because of its fine showing against Class B teams.

Perennial power Grant is No. 4 and Loup City, which like West Point dropped down from Class B, finishes at the No. 5 spot.

Rushville, Wakefield, Ceresco, Newman Grove and Scribner complete the top ten.

Final week shuffling in the Class B ranks was prompted by the 34-7 win by David City Aquinas over previously unbeaten Omaha Cathedral.

The win boosted the Monarchs, losers only to West Point Central Catholic and Class A Pius X, to the No. 5 spot and sent Cathedral tumbling to No. 10.

Nebraska Prep Ratings

By Don Forsythe

Class B

1—York (8-0-1)	6—Hebron (7-1-1)
2—West Point C.C. (9-0)	7—Kimball (9-0)
3—Albion (9-0)	8—Syracuse (8-1)
4—Coza[illegible] (7-1-1)	9—B[illegible] 1)
5—D. C. Aquinas (7-2)	10—O. Cathedral (6-1)

Comment—Tight race for top honors among top three teams. Aquinas moved up in the final standings by blasting Cathedral out of the unbeaten category, 34-7.

Class C

1—West Point (10-0)	6—Rushville (8-1-1)
2—Bertrand (9-0)	7—Wakefield (7-2)
3—Laurel (9-1)	8—Ceresco (8-0-1)
4—Grant (7-1)	9—Newman Grove (7-1)
5—Loup City (8-1)	10—Scribner (6-2)

Comment—Long wait to move into No. 1 position was worthwhile for West Point, which unseated previous leader Laurel, 32-7, in conference playoff. Bertrand presses, but can't quite match the quality of West Point's schedule.

Peay Is Lineman Of Week

. . . MU PLAYER CITED IN BIG 8 FOR BLOCKING

By Associated Press

Francis Peay, 246-pound offensive tackle at Missouri, was voted Big Eight Lineman of The Week Monday for his outstanding blocking ahead of Charlie Brown, Gary Lane and company, who pierced the Oklahoma defense for 295 yards rushing.

"Peay just did one heck of a job again," said Rollie Dotsch, Missouri assistant. "He has done a tremendous job all year."

"He again made the big blocks for Charlie Brown on the strong side. He can sustain a block for an unusually long time and he is fast enough to pull out on sweeps.

"Peay can take a man on his outside and hook him in, and do it consistently. It's a lot to ask, but he does it all the time."

Brown leads the Big Eight in rushing. He picked up 96 against OU.

The players are nominated by the coaches and chosen by a panel of newsmen.

Also high in the voting were Dennis Randall, Oklahoma State defensive tackle, and George Maurer, Iowa State split end.

Randall made 11 tackles against Nebraska and teamed with Hugh McCrabb to force a fumble at the Husker eight-yard line, setting up a touchdown.

Maurer caught six passes, four in key third-down situations, for 72 yards, blocked strongly and was awarded the game ball.

"Again he had the ability to come up with the clutch pass," said Clay Stapleton, Iowa State coach. "He's done a great job all year."

Other nominees were Colorado defensive tackle Frank Bosch, with 10 tackles, three behind the line on the Kansas quarterback; John Morgan, Kansas State's sophomore middle guard, with 10 tackles and one pass broken up;

Jerry Barnett Kansas defensive tackle with nine tackles; Wayne Meylan, Nebraska defensive guard with 12 tackles, some in key situations; and split end Gordon Brown of Oklahoma, with strong blocking and three pass catches. The Sooners also cited Al Henderson, linebacker who made 13 tackles. Nebraska also cited tackle Walt Barnes, for another outstanding defensive game.

McAdams Is Still On Doubtful List For Husker Game

Norman, Okla. (AP) — Linebacker Carl McAdams of Oklahoma, who missed the Missouri football game with a sprained ankle, is still on the doubtful list for the Thanksgiving Day contest with Nebraska.

Trainer Ken Rawlinson said Monday it would be a case of "wait and see".

There was no workout Monday but practices are scheduled every other day this week for the contest at Lincoln.

Robert Kalsu, tight end and wingback Tommy Pannell suffered ankle injuries in the game with Missouri at Columbia Saturday and will miss two days of practice.

NU Cheerleaders Introduce New Yell For Husker Fans

. . . NU FROSH OFFERED BOWL INVITE

Three members of the Nebraska cheering squad introduced a new yell at Monday's Extra Point Club Quarterback Luncheon which they hope will be adopted by Husker fans for the game against Oklahoma on Thanksgiving Day.

Joe Gray Claims Nebraska Record For Brook Trout

Joe Gray of North Platte broke the 12-year-old state brook trout record when he pulled in a five-pound, one-ounce fish at the Pawnee Springs Ranch at Maxwell.

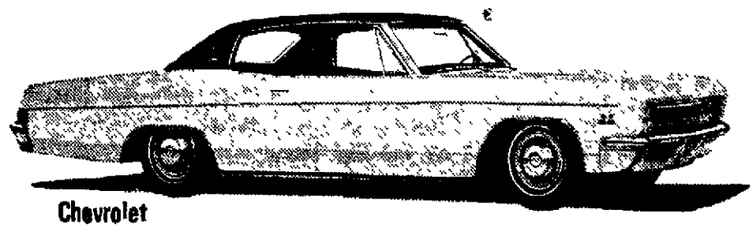

Gray snared his record-breaker with a one-fourth ounce yellow water witch. The female trout measured 19.7 inches in length and 14.5 inches in girth.

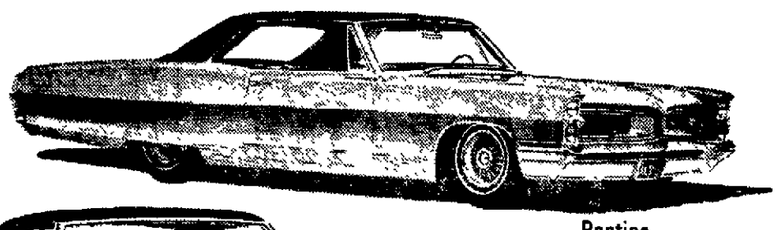

The old record was held by Vernon Zimmerman of Ovid, Colo., who caught a four-pound, eight-ounce trout at Lake McConaughy in 1953.

Peay Is Lineman Of Week

. . . MU PLAYER CITED IN BIG 8 FOR BLOCKING

By Associated Press

Francis Peay, 246-pound offensive tackle at Missouri, was voted Big Eight Lineman of The Week Monday for his outstanding blocking ahead of Charlie Brown, Gary Lane and company, who pierced the Oklahoma defense for 295 yards rushing.

"Peay just did one heck of a job again," said Rollie Dotsch, Missouri assistant. "He has done a tremendous job all year."

"He again made the big blocks for Charlie Brown on the strong side. He can sustain a block for an unusually long time and he is fast enough to pull out on sweeps.

"Peay can take a man on his outside and hook him in, and do it consistently. It's a lot to ask, but he does it all the time."

Brown leads the Big Eight in rushing. He picked up 96 against OU.

The players are nominated by the coaches and chosen by a panel of newsmen.

Also high in the voting were Dennis Randall, Oklahoma State defensive tackle, and George Maurer, Iowa State split end.

Randall made 11 tackles against Nebraska and teamed with Hugh McCrabb to force a fumble at the Husker eight-yard line, setting up a touchdown.

Maurer caught six passes, four in key third-down situations, for 72 yards, blocked strongly and was awarded the game ball.

"Again he had the ability to come up with the clutch pass," said Clay Stapleton, Iowa State coach. "He's done a great job all year."

Other nominees were Colorado defensive tackle Frank Bosch, with 10 tackles, three behind the line on the Kansas quarterback; John Morgan, Kansas State's sophomore middle guard, with 10 tackles and one pass broken up;

Jerry Barnett, Kansas defensive tackle with nine tackles; Wayne Meylan, Nebraska defensive guard with 12 tackles, some in key situations; and split end Gordon Brown of Oklahoma, with strong blocking and three pass catches. The Sooners also cited Al Henderson, linebacker who made 13 tackles. Nebraska also cited tackle Walt Barnes, for another outstanding defensive game.

McAdams Is Still On Doubtful List For Husker Game

Norman, Okla. (AP) — Linebacker Carl McAdams of Oklahoma, who missed the Missouri football game with a sprained ankle, is still on the doubtful list for the Thanksgiving Day contest with Nebraska.

Trainer Ken Rawlinson said Monday it would be a case of "wait and see".

There was no workout Monday but practices are scheduled every other day this week for the contest at Lincoln.

Robert Kalsu, tight end and wingback Tommy Pannell suffered ankle injuries in the game with Missouri at Columbia Saturday and will miss two days of practice.

NU Cheerleaders Introduce New Yell For Husker Fans

. . . NU FROSH OFFERED BOWL INVITE

Three members of the Nebraska cheering squad introduced a new yell at Monday's Extra Point Club Quarterback Luncheon which they hope will be adopted by Husker fans for the game against Oklahoma on Thanksgiving Day.

Head cheerleader F. C. Green along with Martha Hedge and Linda Keating presented the yell to the packed house at the Lincoln Hotel.

The new yell:

Co-o-o-o-o-r-r-r-n—huskers
Co-o-o-o-o-r-r-r-n—huskers
GO BIG RED

"We hope to get this yell going among Nebraska fans the same way other schools do with their Sooey Pig (Arkansas), and War Eagle (Auburn) cries that we have heard the past two years," Green pointed out. "We want to be able to take this yell to Miami."

Frosh To Bowl?

A telegram read at Monday's luncheon offered Nebraska's freshman team a bowl bid if they won over Iowa State Monday afternoon.

"I have this message," master of ceremonies Lou Roper started, "which says we have just received a telegram from Flushing, N.Y., and if Nebraska's freshmen win over Iowa State, they will be invited to play in the Toilet Bowl at Flushing."

Luncheon Next Week

A luncheon will be held as usual at the Lincoln Hotel next Monday despite the fact that there is no game Saturday.

The coaches will be present and movies of either Oklahoma or of a freshman game will be shown. A scouting report will also be given on Oklahoma.

Gray snared his record-breaker with a one-fourth ounce yellow water witch. The female trout measured 19.7 inches in length and 14.5 inches in girth.

Van Brocklin Quits As Vikings Coach

. . . GOES INTO SECLUSION

Minneapolis-St. Paul (AP) — Volatile Norm Van Brocklin, considered by nearly everyone except himself as one of professional football's finest young coaches, stunned the Minnesota Vikings Monday by quitting as head coach.

The high-strung Dutchman, who can strike an erring player numb with searing words and moments later charm the crushed athlete, said there would be no reconsideration of his decision to resign after 4½ years with the National Football League team.

The Viking management, shocked by Van Brocklin's announcement to three reporters he summoned to his office Monday morning, was not accepting the resignation at face value, however.

President Max Winter and General Manager Jim Finks said they hoped to arrange a meeting with Van Brocklin to try to dissuade him. There was no indication when this might be, however, and club director B. H. Ridder Jr. said it might take two days to arrange the session.

Van Brocklin went into seclusion following his announcement and talked only briefly with Finks on the telephone. His wife met a reporter and photographer at the door of his suburban Medicine Lake home and said Van Brocklin would see no one.

The 39-year-old coach quit less than 18 hours after the Vikings suffered a 41-21 loss to the Baltimore Colts which virtually eliminated them as contenders for the NFL's Western Conference championship.

Finks said Winter, Ridder and he did not discuss who would take over the team.

Van Brocklin said his personal preference would be offensive line coach Walt Yowarsky.

Yowarsky and defensive coach Marion Campbell directed the Vikings in an exhibition game this tall when Van Brocklin went to California to attend his mother's funeral.

In his talk with the three reporters, Van Brocklin spiked any speculation that he might be headed for Atlanta to take over as head coach of the new NFL franchise which begins operation next season.

"I want to get out of football now and I have no intention of reconsidering," said the former great pro quarterback who guided the Philadelphia Eagles to the NFL title in 1960 after playing nine seasons for the Los Angeles Rams.

"I'm not doing this to angle for any other coaching job. I know my name has been mentioned for the Atlanta job, but this is it, the end in coaching for me

"I don't know what I'm going to do for a living. But it won't be in football."

Orders For Bowl Tickets Should Include Money

So you want to go to Miami? Well, if you do here are the mechanics of ordering tickets for the Orange Bowl game, although ticket manager Jim Pittenger has said there are priority lists and he has no way of knowing how many tickets can be filled.

Send checks payable to the University of Nebraska at the Coliseum ticket office. Tickets cost $6.50 each for the 10,500 stadium seats allotted to Nebraska and $5 for each of the 500 endzone seats. A 25-cent handling charge should be sent with each order.

If you have already ordered and specified either the Orange Bowl or "any" bowl, you need not reorder.

Cassius Favored, 3-1, Over Floyd Patterson

Las Vegas, Nev. (AP)—Heavyweight champion Cassius Clay was a 3-1 favorite over Floyd Patterson in the betting odds Monday for their 15-round title fight here Nov. 22.

To wager on Clay, a bettor would have to put up $3 50 to win $1. A Patterson supporter would have to put up $2 to win $5.

Coaching Group Sets Proposals

The Nebraska High School Coaches Association will present several recommendations for consideration by the Nebraska School Activities Association's Representative Assembly on Dec. 9

The proposals to be presented to the assembly include:

(1) That seven entries be allowed in Class A and B cross country with five places counted in the scoring

(2) That medals be given the first ten finishers in district and state cross country competition

(3) That six places be scored in the district and state track meets

(4) That the state track meet be held at Omaha University, Bellevue, Midland College or Kearney State.

(5) That the state golf meet be held on a different day than the state track meet.

(6) That district qualifying competition be established in golf

(7) For future adoption That the two-mile run and triple jump be added to the state track meet program

The coaches group also voted to take a more active part in helping finance, plan and conduct the annual coaching clinic now co-sponsored by the University of Nebraska and the NSAA.

Bill Stephenson of Lincoln Southeast was named to head a committee to make a study of developing a ratings system for officials in all sports.

Major Bowl Vacancies Filling Rapidly

. . . GATOR SAYS IT HAS TEXAS TECH OR ARKANSAS

By The Associated Press

The major football bowls appear to be filling up at a record rate with the possibility that all the spots will be nailed down by the close of this weekend's activity.

The Gator Bowl committee in Jacksonville, Fla., announced Monday that the loser of the Arkansas-Texas Tech game Saturday probably will oppose Georgia Tech in the bowl game.

That leaves this probable lineup for the major bowls:

ROSE BOWL—Michigan State, 9-0, vs Southern California, 5-1-1, or UCLA, 6-1-1

COTTON BOWL—Arkansas, 9-0, or Texas Tech, 8-1, vs Tennessee, 4-1-2, Auburn, 6-2-1, or Syracuse, 7-2

ORANGE BOWL—Nebraska, 9-0, vs Alabama, 7-1-1

SUGAR BOWL—Missouri, 6-2-1, vs Florida, 6-2, or Tulsa, 6-2

GATOR BOWL—Georgia Tech, 6-2-1, vs Texas Tech or Arkansas.

Arkansas Coach Frank Broyles quickly denied the Jacksonville report — "it's a false rumor. We deny it." But the Gator Bowl committee said it had reached an understanding with both Arkansas and Texas Tech that the loser of their game will play in the Gator. Tech said it has agreed to go if it loses to Arkansas.

The winner, of course, goes into the Cotton Bowl — the bowl that poses the biggest puzzle.

Michigan State is committed to the Rose Bowl. The West Coast representative is almost certain to be the winner of the Southern California-UCLA game Saturday, though Washington State 7-2, still has a technical chance

Nebraska is committed to the Orange Bowl, and Alabama appears almost certain. The Crimson Tide, ranked fifth in the country, is not among the six teams listed as Cotton Bowl contenders and is generally expected to go to the Orange.

Missouri has accepted a Sugar Bowl berth and Georgia Tech a spot in the Gator.

The Southwest Conference champion, of course, has the host spot in the Cotton Bowl. The Cotton Bowl selectors have listed Tennessee, Auburn, Kentucky, Syracuse, Louisiana State and Florida as possibilities for the other spot.

Those six, along with Tulsa and its record-breaking passing combination of Bill Anderson to Howard Twilley, are Sugar Bowl possibilities.

In other developments, the Sun Bowl selection committee said a list of 15 teams is being considered for the two spots in the El Paso, Tex., game, and in Houston, the Bluebonnet Bowl said 10 teams are in the running for the two spots in the Dec. 18 game.

The Sun Bowl said its list includes Arizona State, Auburn, Mississippi, Texas Western, Colorado, Florida, Florida State, Georgia, Kentucky, Louisiana State, Syracuse, Tennessee, Tulsa, Utah State and Wyoming.

The Bluebonnet Bowl listed Texas Tech, Arkansas, Auburn, Louisiana State, Tennessee, Houston, Kentucky, Tulsa, Syracuse and Georgia.

. . . GOES INTO SECLUSION

Minneapolis-St. Paul (AP) — Volatile Norm Van Brocklin, considered by nearly everyone except himself as one of professional football's finest young coaches, stunned the Minnesota Vikings Monday by quitting as head coach.

The high-strung Dutchman, who can strike an erring player numb with searing words and moments later charm the crushed athlete, said there would be no reconsideration of his decision to resign after 4½ years with the National Football League team.

The Viking management, shocked by Van Brocklin's announcement to three reporters he summoned to his office Monday morning, was not accepting the resignation at face value, however.

President Max Winter and General Manager Jim Finks said they hoped to arrange a meeting with Van Brocklin to try to dissuade him. There was no indication when this might be, however, and club director B. H. Ridder Jr. said it might take two days to arrange the session.

Van Brocklin went into seclusion following his announcement and talked only briefly with Finks on the telephone. His wife met a reporter and photographer at the door of his suburban Medicine Lake home and said Van Brocklin would see no one.

The 39-year-old coach quit less than 18 hours after the Vikings suffered a 41-21 loss to the Baltimore Colts which virtually eliminated them as contenders for the NFL's Western Conference championship.

Finks said Winter, Ridder and he did not discuss who would take over the team.

Van Brocklin said his personal preference would be offensive line coach Walt Yowarsky.

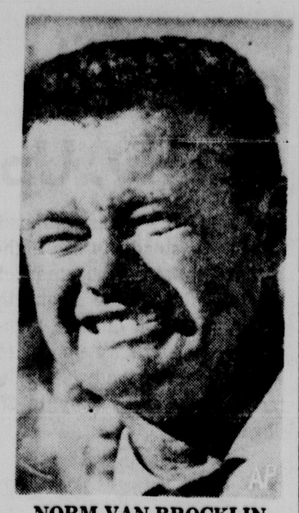

Yowarsky and defensive coach Marion Campbell directed the Vikings in an exhibition game this fall when Van Brocklin went to California to attend his mother's funeral.

In his talk with the three reporters, Van Brocklin spiked any speculation that he might be headed for Atlanta to take over as head coach of the new NFL franchise which begins operation next season.

"I want to get out of football now and I have no intention of reconsidering," said the former great pro quarterback who guided the Philadelphia Eagles to the NFL title in 1960 after playing nine seasons for the Los Angeles Rams.

"I'm not doing this to angle for any other coaching job. I know my name has been mentioned for the Atlanta job, but this is it, the end in coaching for me.

"I don't know what I'm going to do for a living. But it won't be in football."

Orders For Bowl Tickets Should Include Money

So you want to go to Miami? Well, if you do here are the mechanics of ordering tickets for the Orange Bowl game, although ticket manager Jim Pittenger has said there are priority lists and he has no way of knowing how many tickets can be filled.

Send checks payable to the University of Nebraska at the Coliseum ticket office. Tickets cost $6.50 each for the 10,500 stadium seats allotted to Nebraska and $5 for each of the 500 endzone seats. A 25-cent handling charge should be sent with each order.

If you have already ordered and specified either the Orange Bowl or "any" bowl, you need not reorder.

Cassius Favored, 3-1, Over Floyd Patterson

Las Vegas, Nev. (AP)—Heavyweight champion Cassius Clay was a 3-1 favorite over Floyd Patterson in the betting odds Monday for their 15-round title fight here Nov. 22.

To wager on Clay, a bettor would have to put up $3.50 to win $1. A Patterson supporter would have to put up $2 to win $5.

Coaching Group Sets Proposals

The Nebraska High School Coaches Association will present several recommendations for consideration by the Nebraska School Activities Association's Representative Assembly on Dec. 9.

The proposals to be presented to the assembly include:

(1) That seven entries be allowed in Class A and B cross country with five places counted in the scoring.
(2) That medals be given the first ten finishers in district and state cross country competition.
(3) That six places be scored in the district and state track meets.
(4) That the state track meet be held at Omaha University, Bellevue, Midland College or Kearney State.
(5) That the state golf meet be held on a different day than the state track meet.
(6) That district qualifying competition be established in golf.
(7) For future adoption: That the two-mile run and triple jump be added to the state track meet program.

The coaches group also voted to take a more active part in helping finance, plan and conduct the annual coaching clinic now co-sponsored by the University of Nebraska and the NSAA.

Bill Stephenson of Lincoln Southeast was named to head a committee to make a study of developing a ratings system for officials in all sports.

Tulsa Stars In Shrine

TV's Four-Letter Word Row Reaches House Of Commons

London (AP)—A dispute over the use of a four-letter word on a television program of the British Broadcasting Corp. reached the House of Commons Monday and later the BBC apologized for the incident.

It started with a discussion between American author Mary McCarthy and critic Kenneth Tynan, literary manager of Britain's National Theater, a program called "BBC 3" Saturday night.

Tynan was asked: "Would you go so far as to allow a play to be put on at the National Theater in which sexual intercourse took place on the stage?"

Tynan replied: "I think so." Then he added: "Certainly. There are very few rational people in this world to whom the word ---- is particularly revolting or totally forbidden. I think that anything that can be printed can also be seen."

Conservative Motion

Seven Scottish Union (Conservative) members of Parliament introduced a resolution saying.

"This house deplores the bad taste shown recently by certain producers of TV programs of BBC and by some of those who take part in them, and calls upon the director-general either to assert his authority, or to make way for a successor who will."

The motion may never reach debate.

The BBC's director-general is Sir Hugh Greene, a former newspaperman who has had to face criticism in recent years as his state-backed corporation produced controversial satire shows.

Monday the BBC issued this statement:

"The BBC regrets the use of a word which caused offense in an unscripted part of the television program 'BBC 3' on Saturday.

Not Word For TV

"The BBC recognizes that Mr. Tynan used the word in a serious discussion as part of a straightforward statement of his views, but it considers that this is not a word which should be used on the air."

Critic Tynan defended his use of the word in a statement issued on his behalf saying:

"Last Saturday I took part in an unscripted discussion on BBC television in the course of which I used an old English word in a completely neutral way to illustrate a serious point, just as I would have used it in similar conversation with any group of grownup people. To have censored myself would, in my view, have been an insult to the viewers' intelligence."

"BBC 3" is similar to the original BBC satire show, "That Was The Week That Was," and its successor "Not So Much a Program, More a Way of Life." Both were taken off after mounting complaints from viewers.

Vote Registration Starts Thursday For Scotts Bluff

Scottsbluff (AP)—Voting registration stations will open Thursday in Scotts Bluff County which comes under the provisions of a new law LB471 requiring the registration of all voters living in a county having more than 20,000 population.

County Clerk Melvin Maxwell said he expects from 10,000 to 16,000 registrations in addition to the approximately 8,000 already registered in the city of Scottsbluff.

Food Shortages Hit Indian State

Jaipur, India (AP) — Critical food shortages have gripped much of Rajasthan state in eastern India, Chief Minister Mohanlal Sukhadia told newsmen Monday. He said 520,000 persons already are hard pressed in 14,000 villages in the state.

He said famine relief expenditures this year will total about $28 million — double last year's sum. Severe shortages of food grains are expected in many parts of India in the next few months, due to crop failures, but Rajasthan, a semidesert state usually feels the pinch sooner than other states.

Romanian Premier Visits Austria Seeking Trade

Vienna (AP)—Premier Ion Gheoghe Maurer leads a Romanian government delegation to neutral Austria Tuesday for a six-day visit, underlining his country's independent stance in the East European communist orbit.

Mauer's talks with Austrian Chancellor Josef Klaus and members of his Conservative-Socialist cabinet are expected to concentrate on plans for a mutual trade buildup and cooperation in Romanian industrial projects.

The Romanians are seeking Western support in the expansion of their national economy and development of their natural resources free of interference from Comecon, the Soviet-led fledgling communist common market.

Lack of positive response from the United States to Romanian approaches, highlighted by cancellation of an order for a big U.S.-made synthetic rubber plant forced the Bucharest regime to turn more and more to Western Europe.

France, Britain, West Germany, Italy and Austria are now the major Western competitors in Romanian markets. The Bucharest government has developed a reputation for buying big and paying promptly—in hard currency for first-class products, mainly oil and chemicals.

Beside these economic aspects, the Austrian government feels open-door policies toward Eastern Europe help realize the Western concept of building bridges over the Iron Curtain and loosening Moscow's grip.

Airline President's Son Found Dead In Wreck

Indio, Calif. (AP)—The son of the president of the Flying Tiger Line and four members of a family of wealthy land developers were found dead Monday, with three others, in the wreckage of a private plane.

The Lear jet crashed in hills Sunday night a few minutes after takeoff from nearby Palm Springs airport. An all night search ended at dawn when a sheriff's plane spotted the scattered wreckage.

The craft was heading for Burbank, Calif., with a group which had attended a weekend air show, the Palm Springs Aeroclassic. The Civil Aeronautics Board launched an investigation to determine what went wrong.

Aboard were:

—Peter Prescott, 12, son of Robert W. Prescott, Flying Tiger president. The elder Prescott was on a round-the-world research flight over the Poles when the tragedy occurred.

—George and Mildred Alexander, 67 and 61, of Palm Springs and Beverly Hills. He was the builder of thousands of homes in Southern California and has wide financial interests.

—Robert and Helen Alexander, 40 and 36, of Palm Springs. Robert, George's son, was associated with him. They leave a daughter, Jill, 13.

—Richard Koret, New York City, manufacturer of women's handbags.

—Paul Kelly, the pilot, who had leased the plane from the Flying Tiger line for his flying service. Kelly, of Van Nuys, Calif., leaves a widow, Frances.

—Dave Faulkner, copilot, San Fernando, Calif., who leaves a widow and young son.

TV's Four-Letter Word Row Reaches House Of Commons

London (AP)—A dispute over the use of a four-letter word on a television program of the British Broadcasting Corp. reached the House of Commons Monday and later the BBC apologized for the incident.

It started with a discussion between American author Mary McCarthy and critic Kenneth Tynan, literary manager of Britain's National Theater, a program called "BBC 3" Saturday night.

Tynan was asked: "Would you go so far as to allow a play to be put on at the National Theater in which sexual intercourse took place on the stage?"

Tynan replied: "I think so." Then he added: "Certainly. There are very few rational people in this world to whom the word ---- is particularly revolting or totally forbidden. I think that anything that can be printed can also be seen."

Conservative Motion

Seven Scottish Union (Conservative) members of Parliament introduced a resolution saying:

"This house deplores the bad taste shown recently by certain producers of TV programs of BBC and by some of those who take part in them, and calls upon the director-general either to assert his authority, or to make way for a successor who will."

The motion may never reach debate.

The BBC's director-general is Sir Hugh Greene, a former newspaperman who has had to face criticism in recent years as his state-backed corporation produced controversial satire shows.

Monday the BBC issued this statement:

"The BBC regrets the use of a word which caused offense in an unscripted part of the television program 'BBC 3' on Saturday.

Not Word For TV

"The BBC recognizes that Mr. Tynan used the word in a serious discussion as part of a straightforward statement of his views, but it considers that this is not a word which should be used on the air."

Critic Tynan defended his use of the word in a statement issued on his behalf saying:

"Last Saturday I took part in an unscripted discussion on BBC television in the course of which I used an old English word in a completely neutral way to illustrate a serious point, just as I would have used it in similar conversation with any group of grownup people. To have censored myself would, in my view, have been an insult to the viewers' intelligence."

"BBC 3" is similar to the original BBC satire show, "That Was The Week That Was," and its successor "Not So Much a Program, More a Way of Life." Both were taken off after mounting complaints from viewers.

Vote Registration Starts Thursday For Scotts Bluff

Scottsbluff (AP)—Voting registration stations will open Thursday in Scotts Bluff County which comes under the provisions of a new law LB471 requiring the registration of all voters living in a county having more than 20,000 population.

County Clerk Melvin Maxwell said he expects from 10,000 to 16,000 registrations in addition to the approximately 8,000 already registered in the city of Scottsbluff.

Food Shortages Hit Indian State

Jaipur, India (AP) — Critical food shortages have gripped much of Rajasthan state in eastern India, Chief Minister Mohanlal Sukhadia told newsmen Monday. He said 520,000 persons already are hard pressed in 14,000 villages in the state.

He said famine relief expenditures this year will total about $28 million — double last year's sum. Severe shortages of food grains are expected in many parts of India in the next few months, due to crop failures, but Rajasthan, a semidesert state usually feels the pinch sooner than other states.

Romanian Premier Visits Austria Seeking Trade

Vienna (AP)—Premier Ion Gheoghe Maurer leads a Romanian government delegation to neutral Austria Tuesday for a six-day visit, underlining his country's independent stance in the East European communist orbit.

Mauer's talks with Austrian Chancellor Josef Klaus and members of his Conservative-Socialist cabinet are expected to concentrate on plans for a mutual trade buildup and cooperation in Romanian industrial projects.

The Romanians are seeking Western support in the expansion of their national economy and development of their natural resources free of interference from Comecon, the Soviet-led fledgling communist common market.

Lack of positive response from the United States to Romanian approaches, highlighted by cancellation of an order for a big U.S.-made synthetic rubber plant forced the Bucharest regime to turn more and more to Western Europe.

France, Britain, West Germany, Italy and Austria are now the major Western competitors in Romanian markets. The Bucharest government has developed a reputation for buying big and paying promptly—in hard currency for first-class products, mainly oil and chemicals.

Beside these economic aspects, the Austrian government feels open-door policies toward Eastern Europe help realize the Western concept of building bridges over the Iron Curtain and loosening Moscow's grip.

Airline President's Son Found Dead In Wreck

Indio, Calif. (AP)—The son of the president of the Flying Tiger Line and four members of a family of wealthy land developers were found dead Monday, with three others, in the wreckage of a private plane.

The Lear jet crashed in hills Sunday night a few minutes after takeoff from nearby Palm Springs airport. An all night search ended at dawn when a sheriff's plane spotted the scattered wreckage.

The craft was heading for Burbank, Calif., with a group which had attended a weekend air show, the Palm Springs Aeroclassic. The Civil Aeronautics Board launched an investigation to determine what went wrong.

Aboard were:

—Peter Prescott, 12, son of Robert W. Prescott, Flying Tiger president. The elder Prescott was on a round-the-world research flight over the Poles when the tragedy occurred.

—George and Mildred Alexander, 67 and 61, of Palm Springs and Beverly Hills. He was the builder of thousands of homes in Southern California and has wide financial interests.

—Robert and Helen Alexander, 40 and 36, of Palm Springs. Robert, George's son, was associated with him. They leave a daughter, Jill, 13.

—Richard Koret, New York City, manufacturer of women's handbags.

—Paul Kelly, the pilot, who had leased the plane from the Flying Tiger line for his flying service. Kelly, of Van Nuys, Calif., leaves a widow, Frances.

—Dave Faulkner, copilot, San Fernando, Calif., who leaves a widow and young son.

$3.5 Million Request Seen

. . . For Meat Research Center

Washington (AP) — The Agriculture Department plans to ask an appropriation of $3.5 million for the year beginning next July 1 for development of the new meat animal research center at Clay Center, Neb., Sen. Roman L. Hruska, R-Neb., reported Monday.

The recent session of Congress voted $300,000 for planning the center and $200,000 for fencing and other work. The center is to be developed at the site of the old Hastings Ammunition Depot. A tract of 10,000 acres has been made available for the Agriculture Department installation.

Hruska said the proposed $3.5 million appropriation would be for construction of a laboratory, office building and other improvements.

Hruska plans to visit the site Nov. 22 while in the area for a speech in Clay Center.

The senator plans to leave here Thursday for several stops in Nebraska, returning to Washington from time to time for meetings of the Food Marketing Commission, of which he is a member.

Brother And Sister Win Talent Show

Scottsbluff (AP) — A Scotts Bluff County brother and sister both piano players were talent contest winners as the Nebraska Farm Bureau Federation convention opened here.

One hundred and forty delegates from 63 counties had registered Monday for the convention which continues through Wednesday.

In the talent contest Alyn Yamamoto was the winner in the 10 to 13 year old age group and his sister, Carol, won in the 15 to 18 group.

Judy Halling of Lancaster County who won the young adult division and Valarie Hunt of Logan County, who won the discussion meet, are both eligible to compete in similar contests at the national Farm Bureau meeting in Chicago.

In the "talk meet" the lower junior division winner was Kristin Spilker of Gage County and the upper junior winner was Pamela Foster of Perkins County.

College Role Told In Urban Problem Area

Minneapolis, Minn. (AP)—University research, with the results virtually hand-delivered to the nation's farmers, has made American agriculture the envy of the world.

And, says a panel of prominent educators, there is no reason why the same techniques cannot solve the pyramiding problems of the big cities.

"University extension has worked wonders for agriculture for the past 100 years," said president Mason W. Gross of Rutgers University.

"Urban extension agents should be just as effective as their counterparts in the rural areas, although the problems are vastly more complex and difficult in the cities."

Gross spoke at a news conference as representatives of 97 public institutions gathered here for the annual meeting of the National Association of State Universities and Land-Grant Colleges.

The state universities and land-grant colleges are expected to play the major role in translating into action the "urban community services" legislation passed by the last session of Congress.

C. Bruce Ratchford, vice president for Extension at the University of Missouri, told the news conference:

"Each of our institutions has a faculty which covers every area of human concern. For years we have been involved in solving the problems of agriculture, and now we are becoming involved in the problems of the great urban areas.

"We can't do the job alone. But what the universities are uniquely qualified to do is help the people who have to do the job.

"We can upgrade the performance of the officials in the big cities. Research carried out at the universities can be channeled directly to state and local agencies."

$1,112,500 Bid For P.O. Okayed

Omaha (AP) — The General Services Administration Monday notified the offices of Senators Hruska and Curtis and Rep. Cunningham that the old Omaha postoffice site will be sold to the Woodmen of the World Life Insurance Society on Tuesday.

The agency said the bid of $1,112,500 has been found acceptable.

It was the highest of four bids entered last week when the government called for offers.

The insurance society president, William H. Martin, has reported two hotel chains have expressed an interest in the postoffice block.

Grange Renames Newsom Master

Topeka, Kan. (AP)—Herschel D. Newsom, Columbus, Ind., Monday was re-elected master of the National Grange at its convention.

Newsom has held the office since 1950.

Newsom is also president of the International Federation of Agricultural Producers.
